Harrison supers blast DuPont landfill

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

In a surprise move, the Harrison County Board of Supervisors took a united stand Thursday evening against the issuance of a permit for an application filed by the DuPont DeLisle plant to fill 24 acres of forested wetlands that it proposes to use to expand its hazardous waste sites.

Harrison County District 3 Supervisor Marlin Ladner said later that a poll vote of the board produced unanimous agreement. The board stands against the issuance of the permits.

Ladner told a panel of state and federal regulators from the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that he was reminded of the Titanic when he heard testimony about the unquestionable safety of the proposed new land fill.

"I can't help but remember the Titanic," Ladner said. "That was unsinkable too, but we all know the ending of that story. You can't convince me that if we have another Camille, that a 45-foot berm will keep that out."

DuPont DeLisle is proposing to construct a 32-acre hazardous waste site, located 1,200 feet from the Bay of St. Louis, on plant property. DuPont experts say that the

WASTIN' AWAY AGAIN

Tires, old appliances, paint and more paint – along with many other hazardous household chemicals– kept collectors very busy Saturday morning at the special Hancock County Hazardous Waste collection held in the Waveland Kmart parking lot. A long line of cars and pick-ups, some with, trailers awaited the 8:30 a.m. opening of the collection, according to Jeff Loftus of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, who secured a grant from the Department of Environmental Quality at a request from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. # DeSalvo wins in Boudin lawsuit

Promises more court action to follow soon

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

After nearly six years of legal battles, Bayou Phillips resident Martin DeSalvo said on Friday, he's grateful the courts have vindicated his complaints – but said that the verdict in his favor last week is only the end of round one.

Chancery Court Judge Jim Persons handed down the verdict on Wednesday in the case of Hancock County, the Hancock Board of Supervisors and Martin and Debbie DeSalvo vs. Robert J. "Joey" Boudin, awarding $5,000 to the county and $5,000 to the DeSalvos.

"I feel good," DeSalvo said Friday. "Six years is a long time to fight."

A group of Bayou Phillips homeowners led by Martin DeSalvo began the fight in 1999, asking the Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission to block Boudin's dirt-mining operation on a 25-acre site in the neighborhood.

Neighbors claimed Boudin's operation violated zoning ordinances and, further, were affecting the water table in the neighborhood, creating noise and dust and polluting area ditches. Later, the board of supervisors asked then-building official Willie Gavney to look into Boudin's entire operation.

County school board approves $30.3M budget

BY JOHN WATERMAN
Staff Writer

The Hancock County School Board approved its $30,329,889 2004-05 budget during a public hearing on Thursday.

The budget must be divided between seven public education facilities in Hancock County: four elementary schools, one middle school, one high school and one vocational center.

While this year's revenue was over $30 million, the expenditures were slightly more, leaving a difference of nearly $120,000 that still had to be accounted for.

Several increases were reported this year as well. Mandated pay raises for teachers and aides were not fully funded by the state legislature, leaving local tax payers to fund $385,000 out of nearly $1 million.

Health insurance rates also increased, which will cost taxpayers an additional $232,000.

During the hearing, Lynelle Necaise, the district's business officer, explained that the district would meet these shortages by eliminating, consolidating and moving positions throughout the district.

"If somebody retires, we're not going to replace them. We're essentially (looking at) clerks and secretaries. If we have six secretaries,

Household waste collection [illegible]

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The Hancock County Household Hazardous Waste Collection held Saturday in the Waveland Kmart parking lot was a tremendous success, according to Supervisor Lisa Cowand.

"We had good residential participation, a lot of support from volunteers too," Cowand, who participated in the collection said.

David Peacock of the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality, (DEQ), said, "It was a good turnout and the recycling had a some real good support."

Bob O'Conner, spokesman for Aaron Oil Company, Inc., one of the contractors participating, said, "I have been coming to these since they began and this one has been the best success.

"We collected all types of oil today. It came in plastic jugs, cans, and we have one person bring in about a cup full in a bottle."

"People are becoming more and more environmentally conscience, and this is very good," O'Conner added.

An elated Jeff Loftus of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, who coordinated the cleanup and secured a grant from MS DEQ on behalf of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, felt everything went very well.

Loftus was really surprised at the number of tires collected Saturday, "I never thought we would have received as many, because of the five Saturday collections the county had in April and May."

Batteries of all sizes and types were recycled with a representative of Interstate Batteries reporting he had a very good collection.

As the morning began, Waveland Police and Fire Department members were busy directing traffic, as vehicles were lined up a block long 20 minutes before the collection was supposed to begin.

Volunteers assisted by taking surveys and assisted in directing residents to the correct collection spots.

Among the very active 'stops' too, were the paint and household cleaners section, white good collection, and computer monitors.

Cowand did say, "It appears we need at least two of this collections a year. The Board of Supervisors really appreciate DEQ's grant which made this collection possible."

As noon arrived, the aroma of Chris Lagarde, representing U.S. Congressman Gene Taylor, special luncheon for volunteers and workers filled the air. Onion peelers and pepper slicers Betsy Ashman and Darlene Underwood lended some assistance to Lagarde.

Among the supporters of the collection were: Hancock County Board of Supervisors, [illegible] City of Waveland, City of Bay St. Louis, Congressman Gene Taylor, Waveland Kmart, Hancock [illegible] Chamber Beautification Committee, Gulf Regional Planning Commission, Compton Engineering, C.A[illegible] Environmental, Aaron Oil Company, Interstate Batteries, L and D Scrap Metal and Salvage, Corporate Recycling Council, Gulfport Tire Recycling, Circle Tire Processing, Waste Management and Mombo Graphics.

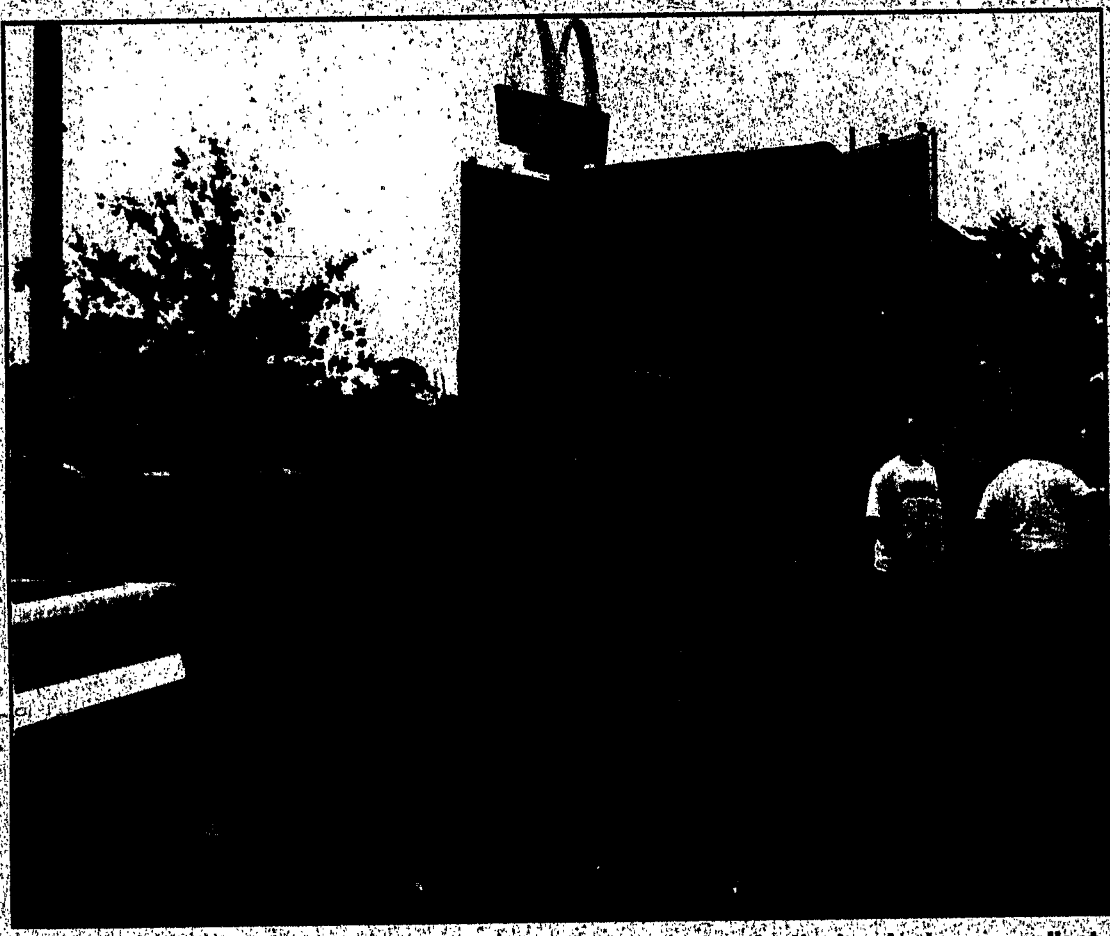
Used motor oil was delivered in plastic jugs, cans and bottles at the Hazardous Household Waste Collection Saturday morning. Batteries of all sizes, some for boats, autos, trucks, lawn mowers, etc., ended up being recycled Saturday as they are collected by Interstate Batteries. Help came from the City of Waveland, Bay St. Louis, Hancock County Jail, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Bay St. Louis Rotary, and numerous volunteers to make the special Hancock county collection a very good success.



Tires of all sizes, from riding lawn mowers to farming tractors by the hundreds were collected by Circle Tire Processing of Pearlington, to head to Gulfport Tire Recycling at the special collection Saturday. Volunteers from numerous groups, such as the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee helps make the collection a success.

Lohrenz named Chair of Southern Miss Department of Marine Science

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Dr. Steven Lohrenz, veteran professor of marine science with The University of Southern Mississippi, has accepted the position of chair of the Department of Marine Science at Stennis Space Center.

On July 1, Lohrenz will step into his new position in the department in which he has taught for more than 18 years.

"My predecessors have been successful in building this program to world-class status," he said.

"I will strive to continue their legacy of fostering the success and growth of our program. A key to this will be to maintain our strong partnerships with other regional agencies and institutions, and to develop new relationships."

Lohrenz received his undergraduate degree in biology and chemistry from the University of Oregon in Eugene.

A graduate of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Woods Hole, Mass., with a doctorate in biological oceanography, Lohrenz specializes in the areas of marine phytoplankton, remote sensing, optics, and research into the identification and tracking of harmful algal blooms, commonly called "red tide."

Mobile home park [illegible] for Springwood

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The Springwood Land and Development Assoc. LLC won approval for a proposed mobile home park on Wednesday.

Former building official Willie Gavney is a representative for Springwood. Neighboring property owners had appealed to Supervisors to overturn a Planning and Zoning Board decision that would allow the park to go forward.

Supervisors unanimously upheld the decision of the Planning and Zoning Board, but added strict stipulations for developers to follow "to the letter" before the project could move forward. Planners will have to go back to Planning and Zoning Commissioners with a detailed site plan before any construction could get underway.

Stipulations for the development include but are not restricted to:

- The park must be fenced around the perimeter.
- The entrance to the park must be attractive.
- There must be skirting around every mobile home or trailer.
- There must be a designated area set aside for garbage control.
- The residents will be responsible for the control of their pet animals.
- Planners must present a comprehensive drainage plan that assures that neighboring properties will not be impacted.
- The park must have a health department approved source of drinking water, not individual wells.
- The park must have access to wastewater treatment services, septic tanks will not be acceptable.

In other business:

- St. Clare Elementary School principal Mark Cumella was appointed to the Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission by District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour. Cumella will replace Mike Favre.
- Supervisors will look at policies governing various county cemeteries, but will not enact a countywide policy for governing those cemeteries, said District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman. In particular they will look at a "no fence" policy that is apparently in force at Bayou CoCo Cemetery. Rosalie Kergosien said that the policy is being unfairly enforced.

Kergosien said her family members were forced to remove a fence from around their family's burial area, but that many other fences remain at the cemetery.

She has put the fence back in place, Kergosien said, because she believes her family was singled out, while others were allowed to keep fences and other markers around family burial plots.

- Supervisors sent a resolution to Stennis Space Center asking that county residents be allowed to use center buildings as shelters in the event of a hurricane that threatens the coastal area.
- Seymour asked that clearly marked signs be placed on the beach advising visitors of leash laws for pets, the no glass container law and other ordinances affecting beach goers.
- District 1 Supervisor David Yarborough asked that board attorney Ronnie Artigues go forward with research on rights of way on Beach Blvd.
- The county was advised that federal property on Rocky Hill Dedeaux Rd., now containing a communication tower, will not be turned over to the county because federal studies show that the location is suitable for a homeless shelter.
- Supervisors set a workshop for all justice court judges, constables, and board members of the Hancock County Water and Sewer District for July 1, at 6 p.m. at the board room at the courthouse. The Planning and Zoning public hearing, scheduled for 4:15 p.m. on the same afternoon, has been moved to the Hancock County Civic Center.
- Rights of way acquisitions continue to hold up progress on the Texas Flat Rd. paving project and on work at the Catahoula Creek Bridge. Caesar Necaise Rd. remains closed at the bridge.
- Developers have received the OK from the county permit office to go forward with an application by Cure Land Co. LLC for a zoning change to a Casino Special Use District for 30 plus acres by Bayou Caddy. The change is needed to go forward with the Silver Slipper Casino or other casino projects.

St. Clare Elementary gets new director of religious studies

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

St. Clare Elementary School in Waveland has hired a Director of Religious Studies to better follow the recommendations of an in depth study of Catholic schools in the Diocese, said Monsignor McGough.

Kristopher Ryals, a recent graduate of Franciscan University in Steubenbville, Ohio, will join the St. Clare family in the fall. He will be joined by his new wife Amy (the wedding will be held next month), who will teach religious studies in Slidell. Funnily enough, the couple, who met at the university, are locals, Kristopher from Picayune and Amy from Slidell.

He graduated with a degree in theology and religious education.

Ryals will supervise and implement programs for the formation of children in the faith, said McGough, following new guidelines that recommend that Catholic schools pursue a renewed effort to thoroughly immerse the teaching atmosphere with the Catholic identity.

Ryals will teach 5th and 6th grade religion classes, prepare liturgical services each week for the mass, help teachers in preparation for classes, hold in-service programs throughout the year in areas of religious formation, and provide seminars for parents in the area of sacramental preparation. He will also serve as youth minister.

"We are lucky to have him," said McGough. "He comes highly recommended by the dean of the university."

St. Clare is holding an open enrollment at present and has room left in grades kindergarten through sixth grade. The pre-kindergarten classes are filled for the fall semester.

Registration is still open for the summer camp. Camp will continue through July 30. Interested persons should call the school at 228-467-7071.

It's been great weather for frogs

The thunderstorms just continue to roll in day after day and there seems to be no end in sight.

One minute we have beautiful sunshine and a quick change takes place with a thunder burst and heavy downfall of rain.

Then too, there are times when only a small section of the area is affected by the shower.

These continued showers and threats of showers sure have placed a damper on fishing.

Many who like to fish the Louisiana marshes are afraid to take the chance across the open waters getting there.

The Bay can be slick calm and within a few minutes, white caps are on the water.

Hopefully, by next Thursday with the opening of the 56th annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, the weather will calm down some.

I know there are thousands who fish this large rodeo each year, so it is hoped the weather will change for the better.

It will not be long before parents have to start preparing for school openings.

This first month of summer seems to be moving by at full speed.

Parents need to first check out our local stores for their back to school needs.

Purchases made in a community help in so many ways, such as, with sales taxes and employment of neighbors and friends.

It always pay to "Shop at Home," no matter where you live.

I wonder how many of you notice as you drive around town the number of homeowners who just leave their garbage cans at the curb.

They just let the can remain there and fill it the morning of, or night before the next garbage collection.

Fortunately, most of the area's residents do pick up their garbage cans and bring them to the back of their homes the same day their garbage is collected.

I know there are some elderly folks who may not be able to handle their garbage cans, but, I feel those who can should consider how bad it makes a community look with garbage cans all over the place.

By the way, I have been told there are communities which have ordinances that garbage containers have to be removed on the collection day.

Less Partisan, More Plainspoken

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

To win the War on Terror we must recognize it for what it should be, - a deadly serious fight to save American lives. When we treat it as a political exercise or a word-parsing game, we do so at our nation's peril.

The fight against terrorists will proceed regardless of who is President or which party controls Congress. The outrageous beheadings of Americans Daniel Pearl, Nick Berg, Paul Johnson and South Korean hostage Kim Sun Il show that terrorists will be stopped only by their own demise. Either we wait for them to kill Americans in our homeland again, or we kill terrorists on their turf, before they get here. Waiting for another attack is not an option, and it's time political leaders and some press folks are less partisan and more plainspoken about this conflict.

Those who think terrorism will suddenly subside when we please France, get UN backing or change Presidents should know better. It's the same kind of failed logic they used against President Reagan in the early 1980s, just a few years before his strong policies helped defeat communism. Europe toyed with appeasement in the Cold War, as they disastrously did before World War II. Europeans called President Reagan a "cowboy," the same as they're calling President Bush. Liberals in the U.S. and in the world huffed at Reagan's daring to call communist dictatorships "evil," just as some do now when President Bush labels terrorists evil. Some here worried, as they do now, about our "image" in Europe and around the world. Well, I trust the American people's judgement. America's people have a good track record of confronting evil, and we know it when we see it. Terrorism is surely evil, far more inherently evil than even communism. America's people knew strength was the best policy against dictators in the Cold War, and the only policy available in the Terror War. Those few obsessing over the Iraqi prison scandal, misquoting and politicizing the bipartisan 9/11 report by denying its well-docu-

Letters to the Editor

Reader thinks MDEQ dropped the ball on DuPont air emissions

If you live, breathe, or drink the tap water along the Mississippi Gulf Coast Tuesday June 8, 2004 was a sad day indeed.

On this day, I traveled to Jackson to witness the Mississippi Environmental Quality Permit Board rubber stamp DuPont DeLisle's permit to increase the amount of toxins they put into your air, water, and land. Sadly predictable was the deafening lack of comments or questions that came from the Board members. The only two members to ask questions during the proceeding were Kent Ford of the Mississippi State Oil and Gas Board and Andrew Whitehurst of Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries, and Parks. The questions were less than enthusiastically answered by Jerry Cain from MDEQ and Pat Nichols from DuPont DeLisle.

The permit meeting began with Mr. Cain presenting an overview of the permit applications, which sounded more like an advertisement for the DuPont DeLisle plant than an overview of how their increased pollution will affect the residents of the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Mr. Cain often summarized and offered conjecture instead of giving the Board unbiased facts. Take for example his answer to Kent Fords question on DuPont's use of the "Best Available Control Techniques" and DuPont's alleged voluntary commitment to reduce dioxin and other toxic emissions from the DeLisle plant in 2005 and later in 2007. Mr. Ford wanted to know, if DuPont is already using the "Best Available Control Techniques" and no new "Best Available Control Techniques" were on the visible horizon, why would MDEQ allow DuPont to wait until 2005 and 2007 to reduce their emissions of Dioxins. Mr. Cain was unable to readily answer Mr. Ford's questions and in a telling sign turned to Pat Nichols, DuPont's representative, for help in answering the question.

DuPont's answer was to state that they would be redesigning the process used to make their Titanium Dioxide and that will help decrease their toxic emissions. Mr. Ford then asked MDEQ why they are not requiring DuPont to change their processes now, before bringing this permit before the Board. Again, Mr. Cain stumbled for an answer or was unwilling to answer the question directly. In response to the voluntary reductions, Mr. Ford wanted clarification if the reductions noted in the permit were indeed voluntary or were they enforceable by MDEQ. On a question that had to do with MDEQ's enforcement of DuPont's pollution limits Mr. Cain, Chief of the Environmental Permits Division, deferred his answer to DuPont. Pat Nichols said that the reductions were purely voluntary and MDEQ had no power to enforce the reductions cited in the permit application.

In another show of the Board's predisposition and rush to please the Barbour Administration in this matter, Mr. Lipe, Chairman of the Permit Board, then asked the Board members, "Can I have a resolution to pass this permit?" Like loyal soldiers in an unjust Army, the motion was quickly offered, seconded, and then Mr. Lipe validated the vote as overwhelmingly approved.

Mr. Whitehurst of the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries, and Parks, was then forced to interrupt Mr. Lipe's rush to judgment and inform him that it was not unanimous.

Lott [illegible]

[illegible] relationship between Saddam and terrorists, including Bin Laden, are engaged in a thinly veiled political campaign.

Recently a Mississippi columnist called the War on Terror, "nebulous" - a fancy word meaning "unclear." He believes that, unlike World War II, this conflict lacks moral clarity. Yet, to most Mississippians, and indeed most Americans, there's nothing unclear when terrorists target innocents, slam airplanes loaded with men, women and children into buildings or record graphic killings just for show. As a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, I see the classified reports. I assure you, it's potent stuff.

Yet, there's nothing classified or complex about the terrorists' goal. They want to use nuclear, chemical or biological weapons on our streets. There's nothing veiled about these terrible video tapes of innocents having their heads cut off for anybody to view. It's all too clear. By the way, I'll stand up for our men and women in uniform fighting the terrorist barbarians.

They're just as able as any American generation. They are outstanding young people who volunteered for their duty, and they certainly don't need the help of any Senator or syndicated columnist to understand it.

Now, that's not to say we can't use some improvement in this struggle. The bipartisan 9/11 commission report showed the intelligence community failed repeatedly in both its intelligence gathering and analysis pertaining to both pre and post 9/11, and especially leading up to the Iraq War. Now, that didn't change the fact that Saddam had to be removed. But bad intelligence and analysis is something that must be improved to save American lives in the future, not to make political hay today. I'm advocating dramatic changes in [illegible] community, [illegible] establishing a [illegible] to which all [illegible] intelligence [illegible] held accountable [illegible], pushing our intelligence agencies to get more human agents on the ground, and more trained linguists.

A satellite in space can never replace a trained agent who knows the native language and his way around Iraq, Afghanistan or wherever the War on Terror leads.

Following an attack on our soil that killed 3,000 innocent people, President Bush and our men and women in uniform have faced down terror and had to write the manual for doing it. We've got to drop the partisanship surrounding this fight and remember we're all in a war, unlike any in history. And it will continue well past November's election. It's about saving innocent lives from murderers who've already killed scores of people. They'll use anything from [illegible] to nuclear weapons to kill many more on our soil again, if we let them. No, there's really nothing nebulous about this - nothing at all.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions or comments about this column. Write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attn: Press Office)

Mr. Whitehurst stated that because his questions of MDEQ and DuPont were not answered satisfactorily he could not vote to approve this permit but would need to abstain from the vote.

In the end, the rest of the Mississippi Environmental Quality Permit Board, or "Barbour Boys" as I like to call them, voted overwhelmingly to approve the increased pollution of South Mississippi's air, land, and water.

Peanut Butter & Jelly Theater presents live performance in Bay

Peanut Butter & Jelly Theater will present a live performance at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, June 30 at Bay High School's Robert V. Magee Auditorium on Blue Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis. This is one of the events for week four of the Hancock County Library System's 2004 Summer Reading Program. Originally scheduled for the Valena C. Jones Gymnasium, the performance was moved to the Bay High Auditorium to allow air conditioning.

The Peanut Butter & Jelly troupe, directed by David Crosby, professor emeritus of communications at Alcorn State University, consists of Port Gibson High School students.

This year's production, Be A Reader, consists of poems, stories and fables, with tales and songs from the folk tradition, including "Possum and Snake," "The King with Dirty Feet," and "Abiyoyo." During the performance, children are encouraged to participate in the singing, storytelling and movement, and to discover the riches found in books and the written word.

Other events for the week include the Diamondhead Dancers at the Waveland Public Library Monday, June 28 at 10:30 a.m.; an arts program at the Pearlington Public Library Tuesday, June 29 at 10:30 a.m.; and the Red String Puppet Theater at the Kiln Public Library Thursday, July 1 at 10:30 a.m.

The Diamondhead Dancers, a group formed by Ruth and Charles Olivier of Diamondhead, provides men and women the opportunity to learn the art of line-dancing and clogging.

Parents and children are asked to attend the program at the library branch nearest them.

Participants will receive awards and certificates this week. For more information about the Summer Reading Program, contact Jamie Elston at 467-5282.

Peanut Butter & Jelly Theater is supported in part by funding from the Mississippi Arts Commission, a state agency, and in part from the National Endowment fro the Arts, a federal agency, through a grant from the Mississippi Library Commission.

DuPont -- landfill hearing

site, which will be built on a clay base, and lined with several layers of impermeable liners will be safe from leaks. The company plans to surround the site with a graduated dike-like structure that they say will eventually be covered with sod. The height of the dike at the Bay of St. Louis side will be 45 feet.

Many area residents said they were unconvinced that the site would keep the community safe from possible contamination from the wastes contained within during a hurricane type event.

Harrison County District 5 Supervisor Connie Rockco hit the panel with a series of tough questions.

"Define a small amount of radioactivity," Rocko asked MDEQ experts who had earlier sought to quell concerns about radioactive material that may be a by-product of Ilmenite ore that is used in the manufacturing process at the plant.

The plant is allowed to store eight cubic feet of such material on the plant site each year, MDEQ officials said.

"What hazardous waste compounds are expected to remain in the land fills," asked Rockco.

"Everything in the land fill will remain in the land fill," said MDEQ's Jerry Cain. "That is why you use the liners."

Rockco also asked MDEQ about the two toxic plumes (leaks of toxic waste) existing under the plant and the groundwater contamination on site. She asked what was being done to contain the waste and how long it had been there.

Cain said that the EPA was looking at the problem, but that there were no physical barriers being used for containment. Cain said he did not know how long the problem had been around.

Rockco also brought up the subject of air emissions. Cain said that as far as he knew, no violations of EPA standards had occurred since an incident in the 1990s.

Bay St. Louis resident Ray Funderburk – who said he spent 25 years in the hazardous waste business, was a trained geologist and served as a colonel in the Corps of Engineers – told the audience that in the "regulatory dance," no one takes responsibility for the impact on the local population.

Funderburk said he believed that the dry wastes proposed to be deposited at the site would drift into the surrounding environment. He asked why all the wastes could not be routed into deep injection wells

"Instead of removing water from the waste, add more water and pump it down the hole as a slurry," Funderburk said. "I am against a blue chip company that has millions in profits each year dragging their feet and not taking action to correct deficiencies that have existed for years. Let's talk about taking action on the permits that exist before we issue more."

Economics was a subject that came up again and again as motivation to issue the requested permits. The DeLisle plant provides employment for 1,000 people.

Diamondhead resident Paul Guichet, who serves on the citizen's advisory panel at DuPont, said that he believes that the company has demonstrated leadership for smart growth, and environmental stewardship. Guichet read a resolution issued by the Executive Committee of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce in support of issuing the permits.

Former plant employee Mary Ricer nixed economic considerations.

"You should be ashamed to put people at risk for economic considerations," said Aricer.

"Decisions are not being made in the best interest of the community ... the effects the chemicals will have may not be seen for years to come."

Toxicity of the chemical wastes produced at the plant has long been the subject of controversy in the surrounding community. For years, many residents have claimed that the toxic wastes have caused a rash of life threatening illnesses. Both DuPont DeLisle and the Sierra Club had hired experts to dispute the subject at the hearing. Many people complained that the technical jargon used in their debate was too complicated to understand.

"The disposal unit does not call for a special aquatic site or require access or proximity to water," said Cynthia Sarthou, executive director of the Gulf Restoration Network, "and so does not need to be located in the wetlands. A report from the plant had listed alternative sites, she said. Sarthou called for a formal Environmental Impact Study to be completed before the process continued.

Deborah Dauner of the Mississippi Recovery Alliance came to the hearing to offer a solution.

"There is another alternative, an alternative that the DuPont Corporation itself has looked into. This is an alternative to the old chlorine Ilmenite process ... this new process does not produce dioxins ... and reduces the waste stream between 40 and 70 percent ... I am here to say that the technology is available now."

Information on the recently patented process called nanotechnology, the first comprehensive patent for TiO2 pigment production since DuPont's in the 1950s, is available on the Internet, Dauner said.

Jerry Cain of the MDEQ said that his agency has already made a preliminary decision to grant the permits.

He said it was agency policy to issue a preliminary decision before going to a public hearing. The Corps has no such policy and does not make any decisions until after the public hearing, Cain said.

The comment period for the permitting process will continue until July 26. Copies of the permit applications are available at the Pass Christian Library.

Written comments may be mailed to the MDEQ, P.O. Box 10385, Jackson, MS. 39289-0385, or to the Corps, Mobile District, P.O. Box 288, Mobile AL. 36628-0001.

For more information call Toby Cook at MDEQ at 601-961-5171 or Chuck Sumner at the Corps at 251-694-3792.

Schools -- Hancock budget

and we can get by with 5, we get by with five. We're trying to cut back within reason. Obviously, if we have a need, we'll ask the board if we can hire other positions. We're actually adding on teacher's assistants."

Most capital improvements and equipment purchases have also been placed on indefinite hold.

"We laid some floor tiles, obviously we won't have the funds to take care of some of the niceties around the school. We're going to try and prioritize. More conservative with funds, in case emergency comes up.

The $300,000 textbook budget will be reduced to $100,000 as well.

Kopf said the district would not be buying fewer textbooks; rather this year, the state did not require any replacements.

"Each year you have a textbook you replace. This year, we did not have any new books adopted. The department of education did not have an adoption list this year."

Next year, Kopf said, social studies text books were to be updated.

The district's funding comes from three sources: Local, state and Federal revenues. Fifty-two percent of the revenue comes from the state, based on student and teacher performance. Twelve comes from federal funds, mostly supported by money from the Federal Child Nutrition Reimbursement Act.

The remaining money comes from ad velorem taxes, or the "millage" system. The current millage rate per taxpayer is $47.61.

The board also voted 4-1 to change its insurance carrier to Statewide Insurance, on the condition that the company sends a proposal that meets or exceeds several clarifications that the board requested regarding Statewide's exemptions.

As of 5 p.m. on Friday, Kopf said that he had received the new proposal, but that he and Necaise had not yet determined if it answered all of their concerns.

Board member Cheryl Bennett, district 1, said she voted against Statewide because she preferred Steward Sneed Hewes because of their history with the board.

"Since we don't have an agent to represent us, I'd like to go for the one I know will perform," Bennett said.

Steward Sneed Hewes Insurance will remain the district's carrier for School Board malpractice, or Errors and Omissions, insurance.

The premium will be $9,488, which is significantly lower than last year's total of $17,232.

DeSalvo -- lawsuit

Originally, Boudin held the county garbage hauling contract and moved his business to the site he purchased off Harbor Drive.

Later, he sold the business, but continued to operate a number of environmental businesses from the site, including dirt mining, land clearing, building demolition, septic tank pumping and portable toilet rental.

According to court records, Boudin began digging a pond of less than one acre on his land in 1977 before the county passed a Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance; and the Department of Environmental Quality said he was not required to get a permit unless the pit went over four acres.

But, DEQ said, subsequent mining would have to be approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Boudin didn't get approval to start digging a second pond, but later came before the zoning board and sought permission to dig a pond and develop a residential subdivision.

In January 2000, the zoning board ruled that Boudin could continue digging the pond and using the dirt to elevate the surrounding land, but that he could not haul dirt away from the site.

In February of that year, the supervisors upheld the zoning board's decision to reject Boudin's request for a special exception to continue mining dirt.

Several neighborhood homeowners accompanied Boudin to that meeting, saying they did not object to his plans and thought the subdivision he planned would increase property values.

However, others came to support the DeSalvos, and said the operations were harmful to the neighborhood.

DeSalvo has contended that since that time, Boudin has continued to defy the supervisors order and a court injunction, and continued to use the property for purposes that are in violation of zoning ordinances.

On March 15, 2001, the DeSalvos filed a complaint for contempt and declatory relief. The complaint was later amended to include the county and the board of supervisors as plaintiffs.

Since then, the case has gone through three years of legal wrangling, with each side filing amended complaints and replies.

According to the judge's ruling last week, Boudin "violated the terms (ordered by the court) by choosing not to complete Phase I of the subdivision in accordance with the approval and the restrictions imposed by Hancock County and by using the subdivision approval as a means to continue to sell dirt form the lake or pond site."

Persons found Boudin in default and in contempt and ordered him to fill in the hole at the lake site.

"It ain't over with yet because I'm filing more lawsuits against the other people involved in this," DeSalvo said Friday.

Neither Boudin nor county attorney Ronnie Artigues were available for comment on Friday.

16th Annual 'Radio for Red Cross' Blood Drive is Fishin' for Donors

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Bait your fishing poles and start up the boat, it's time to go "Fishin for Donors."

The American Red Cross and 13 local radio stations are urging Gulf Coast residents and visitors to give blood and get "hooked" on saving lives.

The 16th Annual "Radio for Red Cross" blood drive begins on June 29 with a goal to collect at least 850 pints of lifesaving blood and will run for three days across the three Coastal counties. This year, organizers have moved the annual blood drive, for the first time, from July to the last week of June in an effort to boost critically low blood supplies just before the long 4th of July holiday. The need for blood typically increases over the holiday weekend.

The Red Cross blood drives will begin on Tuesday, June 29 at Edgewater Mall in Biloxi from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. near the Carousel on the south end of the Mall. Casino Magic in Bay St. Louis will host the drive on Wednesday, June 30 from Noon until 7 p.m. in the Bay Tower Hotel Cypress Cove Ballrooms.

As a thank you for giving blood, donors will receive a free Radio for Red Cross "Fishin' for Donors" t-shirt, a coupon for a free chicken sandwich from Chick-fil-A, a can of Coca-Cola, a free buffet coupon from Sicily's Ultimate Italian Buffet, free gourmet cookies from Cookies by Design, a free burger meal from Sonic and a one-week free trial membership from Premier Fitness.

Keeping with the fishing theme, every donor can enter a drawing for a free, full-day chartered fishing trip for up to 10 people courtesy of Happy Snapper Charters. Every 100th donor will receive a radio station gift pack including a free ticket on the Biloxi Shrimping Trip. One lucky donor will be the 10,000th person to have ever donated blood at a "Radio for Red Cross" blood drive will receive a fabulous gift basket including a one-night stay at Casino Magic in Bay St. Louis and dinner for two at the Jourdan River Grille, free tickets to Ship Island courtesy of Ship Island Excursions and other goodies. Childcare will be provided and Domino's pizza will be served each day.

Every one in three people will require a blood transfusion at some time in his or her life. Every two seconds, someone in our country uses blood and each day the Red Cross must collect over 34,000 pints of blood nationwide. When blood supplies fall below a 1-day supply, like they have since mid-June on the Coast and across the country, surgeries have to be put on hold, trauma patients run the risk of not receiving the blood they need and supplies on hand are not enough to handle emergencies.

This can be especially dangerous to public health during hurricane season and during heightened terror alerts. Blood must be on the shelf and available for transfusion before the need occurs.

You can do your part to keep our community's blood supply safe by giving blood if you are 17 years old or older, weigh at least 110 pounds, have not donated blood in the past 56 days and are in general good health. The American Red Cross has recently revised their guidelines on donors who have visited the United Kingdom since 1980. If you have traveled to any UK country for a total time of 3 months or more from January 1, 1980 through December 31, 1996 you cannot give blood at the present time due to mad-cow disease restrictions. However, you are now able to donate if you have been in any United Kingdom country from 1997 until the present, as long as you did not spend 3 months or more between 1980 and 1996.

For more information about the "Radio for Red Cross" blood drive, about giving blood or volunteering with the American Red Cross, please call the Red Cross at 896-2217.

[illegible] Tunica

[illegible] casino resort in Tunica County, a [illegible] million undertaking that would become the largest gaming destination in Mississippi.

Members of the state Gaming Commission gathered in Natchez recently to consider the Myriad Botanical Resort proposal and its potential 3,000 new jobs. Approval of site and development plans was expected.

The resort would include an 80,000-square-foot casino with 2,000 slot machines and 90 table games, a 1,200-room hotel, a convention center, botanical gardens, an 5-acre water park and an indoor golf course.

Developers are also considering the addition of a snow park with manufactured snow, targets for snowballs and a sledding hill.

Developers would be required to present funding plans at a later hearing.

We've not seen a development as large as this since gaming has been legalized, and the casino is such a small part of the [illegible] working toward [illegible] solution [illegible] no.

The resort site is two miles south of Hollywood Casino and near the proposed Interstate 69 project, a new four-lane span that would run from the Canadian border in Michigan to the Mexican border in T[illegible].

If the [illegible]ct goes as planned, the hotel and casino are expected to open in the fall of 2006.

The proposal is the first casino venture of Myriad World Resorts, a Canadian company based in Edmonton, Alberta, said Fred Hayne, marketing director for Myriad World Resorts. Completion of the entire resort would take about four years, he said.

Myriad initially considered placing the resort in Canada, but Tunica County's growth as a destination resort influenced it to move the project to Mississippi, Hayne said.

"We've just invested $75 million in the Tunica golf course, the river park and airport," Franklin said.

Employees to staff the casino would come from the Memphis area, which includes Tunica County, he said. Tunica County has about 10,000 residents.

If the site and development plans are approved, the project developers would have two years to open the casino and hotel, Gregory said.

Askew named president of Rotary District 6840

ASKEW

Dr. Becky Askew, chief planning officer at Pearl River Community College, is excited as she prepares to begin her role as District Governor of District 6840 for Rotary International for the club year 2004-05.

She will serve in this capacity from July 1, 2004, through June 30, 2005.

Rotary is an international organization with more than 31,000 clubs in 166 countries and has a membership exceeding 1.2 million. District 6840 is composed of 51 clubs and more than 2,600 Rotarians in Mississippi and Louisiana. There are 25 Rotary Clubs in Mississippi and 26 Clubs in Louisiana.

The clubs are primarily in southern Mississippi and southeastern Louisiana, including those on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, in the New Orleans area, and in Hattiesburg.

Askew is the second woman to serve as District 6840 Governor. She recently served as President of the Rotary Club of Poplarville (2000-2001), during which time the club was recognized for its tremendous growth in membership. She also worked to establish active committees that focused on the four Avenues of Service: Vocational Service, Community Service, International Service, and Club Service.

In addition, she has served her club as secretary, treasurer, and sergeant at arms and is presently a member of the Flag Committee for the 2004 Zones 29 and 30 Institute. In 2001, she was honored by her club as a Paul Harris Fellow.

Her leadership established the Rotary Club of Poplarville as one of the top Rotary Clubs in the District. During her term as President, the Rotary Club of Poplarville received the Rotary International Membership and Development Award and the District,s Most Outstanding Small Club Award. In addition, the club celebrated its 75th anniversary with a banquet featuring U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran as the keynote speaker.

Askew has embraced the ideals of Rotary and demonstrates the Rotary Four Way Test of everything we think, do, and say. That test is: Is it the Truth, Is it Fair to All Concerned, Will it Build Goodwill and Better Friendship, and Will it be Beneficial to All Concerned?

She will direct the District through one on the most significant events in Rotary history. Rotary will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 2005, and she and the other members of the District leadership team have plans to make the year special in recognition of this milestone.

The start of summer & Stella's Lemon Sorbets

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Faronza La Violette

Summer! It came with very little fanfare last Sunday at about 7:00 pm. In fact, many of us felt that it was already here and the announcement of its official coming last week found us in no mood to celebrate.

Stella and I have a certain ritual to begin each season. Spring's is met with our starting to spend more of our time outside; most of this on the low wooden deck Stella and I built at the east corner of the house. The corner area forms a natural breezeway and we use the deck even on the hottest days.

It's well furnished for doing what we do. Stella has slung a hammock between two large live oaks and I have positioned a chaise lounge near her and a table for iced sun tea and dishes of Stella's summer ices or sorbets. We spend much of the spring, summer and fall there, enjoying fall most of all. The best times are early evenings at the hours of sunset, but any time is good.

One thing. Live oaks have a tendency to send out low branches just above the ground. A large branch of one of our oaks (Miss Gretal) does that very thing with one of her limbs snaking across the deck splitting its area almost in two. We don't mind its wandering intruder and in fact have put it to work.

With some heavy wire and lines, we are training the limb to make an abrupt right turn at the sidewalk to the gazebo so that it its low snaking run continues parallel to the walk. Stella and I are looking to the future. In another twenty or thirty years we will have a nice natural bench to sit on when we walk to the gazebo. By then we'll be of an age that we'll need to stop every four or so feet and rest.

But my summer-is-starting marker is different from our marker for the start of spring; summer's marker is gastronomical. This is the

Local man getting help in re-building lost home

Charlie Hodge, formerly of North Carolina has lived on the Coast since 1980, when doctors suggested he relocate to the warmer climate for health reasons.

In that time, he has lost two homes.

The first time Hodge was rendered homeless was in Sept. of 2002, when Tropical Storm Isidore flooded his trailer in Shoreline Park.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) gave him relief money to buy another trailer. The funds went up in smoke, however, when Hodge's second home caught fire earlier this spring.

Since then, Hodge has had to depend on the generosity of friends in order to get by. He has been staying at a friend's house across from his property on Glen St, just off of Highway 603.

However, Hodge may soon have his own home again.

According to Chari Rapp, head of McIntyre-Rapp real estate, said construction would begin shortly.

"It depends on on how quickly all the materials are donated, and when we can get the dirt hauled in. As soon as the materials are donated, we will start."

Rapp first met Hodge two months ago, and since then has

The caterpillars will grow from tiny to huge in what seems like days. Then about the time you think the plant is dead, new leaves and flowers will appear and you'll notice even more butterflies. Congratulations: you're a proud parent.

Views -- Stella's

time for me to switch from enjoying Stella's homemade ice cream (she makes two wonderful flavors, vanilla and butter pecan) to savoring her fruit sorbets.

Don't get me wrong, Stella's ice cream is unbelievably good (tons of whipping cream and things like that), but it is rich and on a hot summer day I prefer one of her cooling, oh so frothy, fruit sorbets to satisfy my sweet tooth.

Last Saturday, the eve of the official start of summer, Stella made a gallon of lemon sorbet and another gallon of grapefruit sorbet. There was a reason; on Summer Sunday, Stella was entering the hospital for knee surgery.

She needn't worry about me running away from home while she was gone. I've already had some of both of her sorbets. And then there's still the coming of fall, which means Raspberry Cheesecake and, oh lordy! Chocolate Mousse.

STELLA'S [illegible]

4 eggs [illegible]

2 1/2 [illegible]

4 cups [illegible]

2 tbsp. vanilla

1/4 tsp. [illegible]

5 cups milk (approx.)

Beat eggs [illegible] in large mixing bowl. Gradually [illegible] thickened. Add cream, [illegible] and mix thoroughly until [illegible] and all ingredients are incorporated. Pour into ice cream maker. Add milk to fill line. Freeze as directed. [illegible] 4 qts.

We make so much of this ice cream recipe that we cannot afford the time or the trouble of a hand-cranking machine with a pretty wooden tub. We leave those to the purist and buy one of the inexpensive (about $20) electric ice cream makers that are so plentiful on the market. At the rate we make ice cream, one of these machines lasts about two years. Let's see. I've been married to Stella about thirty years. That means that we have gone through about ...

This is a great recipe for ice cream and we usually stick to making vanilla, but changes can be made for other flavors by adding fresh fruit as it is made. Do not sweeten the fruit.

The natural sweetness of the added fruit is enhanced by the ice cream and vice versa.

STELLA'S LEMON ICE

2 tsp. lemon rind

2 cups sugar

4 cups water

1/4 tsp. salt

3/4 cup lemon juice (fresh squeezed)

Grate lemons onto sugar. Add water and salt. Heat slowly until sugar dis- [illegible] to a boil and [illegible] cool and then [illegible] freeze.

[illegible] extremely refreshing [illegible] during the summer [illegible] replacement for ice cream [illegible] to be honest, can be a [illegible] hot weather).

An alternative to the lemon flavoring is freshly squeezed grapefruit juice. Try it. We like both.

Small dabs of defrosted frozen fruits such as raspberries can be put on top the ices for added zest. Use only small amounts so as not to detract from the ices original flavor. Paul likes to add just a splash (no more or the ices will melt) of Grand Marnier.

An excellent way that the lemon ice can add panache to a several course dinner with special guests is to serve a slight amount (perhaps two large tablespoons) of the ice in a sherry glass between courses. Surprisingly, this will "cleanse the palate," i.e. seperate the flavors between the disparate tastes of the two courses,like both.

ly because the seedpods will split open as they mature, and the seeds will become airborne. Transplanting from the wild is not recommended because they have long taproots and because our wild areas need to keep them.

Growing from seed is simple: the small seeds should be lightly covered with soil that is kept moist until germination. Once planted in the garden, they are considered drought-tolerant and should be watered sparingly but deeply when needed. Fertilizer needs are low -- just give them a light application in the spring with the emergence of new growth.

When you see caterpillars feeding, remember not to spray an insecticide. Instead, create a butterfly garden with the butterfly weed plants in front of buddleias like Empire Blue, Nanho Blue or Black Knight. You'll love the combination planting. Also grow them with Indigo Spires or Victoria Blue salvias, Dark Knight caryopteris and Biloxi Blue verbena.

Believe it or not, there are named selections of the butterfly weed. Gay Butterflies (orange, red and yellow mixed), Orange Flame (orange), Vermillion (red) and Hello Yellow (yellow) are the leading selections.

Occasionally you will find the Asclepias incarnata for sale. This butterfly magnet is known as milkweed and comes in pinks, yellows and whites. The imported Asclepias curassavica, known as bloodroot, often is easy to find at garden centers.

You'll be doubly happy with plants that not only are beautiful, but serve as a food source for butterflies and hummingbirds as well.

been trying to assist him.

"I'm just trying to help him get a home," she said.

Several local companies have volunteered their services to help Hodge. Necaise Electric has agreed to wire the house, and do electrical work. Compton Engineering has donated architechtural plans. Jamie Bean has agreed to fill in the dirt around Hodge's property, and remove the old trailer.

Members of Word of Faith Church cleared much of the debris from the burned trailer, and cleared part of the property by hand.

Smokey's Custom Cabinets will build counter tops and cabinets.

Sam's Air Conditioning has agreed to install heat and air conditioning.

Hodge, who is afflicted with Cerebral Palsy, and has braces on his legs, said his home would be built so that he could get around.

Hodge said he wanted to thank the people who donated, and said that any further donations would be welcome.

"Right now, I need financial help too," he said.

Hodge said donations can be made through an accounts set up for him at either Hancock Bank, or through Chari Rapp at McIntyre-Rapp Real Estate.

Spring Hill College announces Spring 2004 Dean's List

Local officials complete Homeland Security training

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has just completed training at its National Emergency Training Center for David Garcia, chief of the Waveland Fire Department; Waveland Building Official Mike Horne; and Candee L. Breaux, assistant building official of Hancock County Building and Zoning.

"Homeland Security trains thousands of firefighters, emergency service personnel, government officials and private citizens every year. This training helps better secure the homeland - saving lives, protecting property and enhancing disaster planning, response and recovery across the country," said Michael D. Brown, Under Secretary of Homeland Security for Emergency Preparedness and Response. "Graduates of these training programs make a major contribution back at home, in communities such as Waveland."

Garcia completed the Emergency Management Institute's Residential Coastal Construction Course in Emmitsburg, Maryland, on June 18, 2004. This course trains participants on the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) Coastal Construction Manual. This manual is the primary, state-of-the-art reference for planning, designing, and constructing residential structures in coastal environments.

Breaux completed the Managing Floodplain Development through the National Flood Insurance Program course in Emmitsburg, Maryland, on June 18. This course is designed to provide an organized training opportunity for local officials responsible for administering their local floodplain management ordinance. The course focuses on the National Flood Insurance Program and concepts of floodplain management, maps and studies, administration, and the relationship between floodmanagement and flood insurance.

Horne completed the Emergency Management Institute's Residential Coastal Construction Course in Emmitsburg, Maryland, on June 18, 2004. This course trains participants on the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) Coastal Construction Manual. This manual is the primary, state-of-the-art reference for planning, designing, and constructing residential structures in coastal environments.

On March 1, 2003, FEMA became part of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. FEMA's continuing mission within the new department is to lead the effort to prepare the nation for all hazards and effectively manage federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident. FEMA also initiates proactive mitigation activities, trains first responders, and manages Citizen Corps, the National Flood Insurance Program and the U.S. Fire Administration.

Facts About The BIBLE

Copyright© 1980 John A. Lehl, National Representative: Dell Advertising Service, P.O. Box 10676, Goldsboro, NC 27532

THE TRAGEDY OF AHIMELECH

FROM THE FIRST, IT WAS JUDGED THAT THE KING'S WORD IN BIBLICAL TIMES WAS ABSOLUTE LAW. HIS SLIGHTEST NOD HAD THE POWER OF LIFE OR DEATH OVER ANY OF HIS SUBJECTS. ONE WOULD THINK THAT A HIGH PRIEST WOULD HAVE BEEN EXEMPT FROM THIS RULE BUT SUCH WAS NOT THE CASE! AHIMELECH, THE CHIEF PRIEST OF THE TEMPLE AT NOD, CAME UNDER KING SAUL'S WRATH (I SAM. 22:16) BECAUSE HE INADVERTENTLY HELPED DAVID WHEN DAVID WAS ESCAPING FROM SAUL. AHIMELECH DID NOT KNOW, AT THE TIME, THAT DAVID WAS OUTLAWED BY KING SAUL AND GAVE HIM THE HOLY BREAD FROM THE TEMPLE TO FEED HIM AND HIS FOLLOWERS. SO OUTRAGED WAS SAUL AT THIS TREACHEROUS DISOBEDIENCE THAT NOT ONLY WAS AHIMELECH SLAIN BUT ALL THE OTHER PRIESTS IN HIS FAMILY WERE SUBSEQUENTLY SLAUGHTERED ALSO--ALL EIGHTY FIVE OF THEM!

THOU SHALT SURELY DIE, AHIMELECH, THOU AND ALL THY FATHER'S HOUSE!

We Were Blind, But Now We See?

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Music hath charm to soothe the savage breast." That's right, William Congreve says breast, not beast, in his 1697 play, The Mourning Bride. In any case, we all know this to be 100 percent true in our experiences with music in every event, rite and phase of life.

One Ray Charles Robinson was so gifted that he clearly ranked in the upper nineties percentile in his ability to soothe the savage, the sad, the afflicted or any other breast. Ray moaned, wailed and wept with the grieving, waxed bluesy with the mellow, rejoiced with the joyful and stood tall, proud and movingly emotional with the patriotic and valiant.

Sandwiched between newscasts and heard repeatedly all day long, only Ray's America the Beautiful seemed appropriate for the United States' pull-out from Vietnam in 1975. Ditto for the grinding loss, trauma, pain and loss we suffered in the fateful events of 911.

There were other patriotic songs, of course, but Ray's love song to his beloved country appeared to be the most expressive of all, transcending race, culture, religion, time, social status and economic condition in life. In good, best and worst times we turned to Ray.

Geography made no difference either, as we always find in music which is perhaps the most common denominator of all human communication. Where we fail in local tongue or dialect, we make up through the universal medium and appeal of melody, beat and lyrics.

Thus, Ray Charles was a household name among peoples of all nations and tribes.

Stricken with glaucoma the age of four, Ray was blind by the time he was seven. What, then, could a poor black, blind boy born in Albany, Georgia make of himself in the big world around him? Precious little if we consider the ordinary child.

Worse, Ray was ushered into the world on September 23, 1930 on the tail end of the Great Depression. "Even compared to other blacks," he observed, "we were on the bottom, Nothing below us except the ground."

However, Ray's genius seemed fired even more by the loss of his sight, as witnessed by the explosion of his talents as composer, multi-instrumentalist, arranger and master musician in the St. Augustine, Florida School for the Deaf and Blind from 1937-1945.

In line with the time-honored observation that people who have lost one sense such as sight compensate for it by an elevated awareness, alertness and sensitivity through the other senses. We have all been witnesses of this by observing the blind.

For his part, Ray Charles lifted his senses of hearing, touch, smell and taste to such a level of genius that he was soon operating in a rarified musical atmosphere all by himself.

Instead of being a stumbling block, his blindness was a catapult which became so tightly wound up that it vaulted him high over everyone, leaving sighted artists in his wake.

It is my personal persuasion that the onset of glaucoma, though perhaps an accident, was rather God's divine providence which used the ensuing blindness as a springboard for heightening Ray's God-given musical genius and sharing it with all peoples in all metropolises and hinterlands of the world in a buoyant idiom embraced by all.

It sounds a lot like the oral tradition from African religion tens of thousands of years old which assures us that the secular must not be separated from the sacred, for the two are bound up intimately in the one Supreme Being who rules us all. Most of the mistakes we make in life find their roots in our attempts to keep the sacred and the profane apart.

In a delightful surprise, Christ the Messiah teaches the same thing in many of his parables and similes, and again in Matthew 6 where he shows how his Father's love for us in revealed in his meticulous care of the birds of the air and the lilies of the field.

Paul picks up the same theme in 1 Corinthians 10:31: "Whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for the glory of God."

Ray Charles was right in step with both African religion and Christianity as he blended the secular in music so beautifully and powerfully that it morphed imperceptibly into the sacred, so that raw, earthy feelings were consecrated and sanctioned. Yes, there is something unmistakably religious about Ray's rendering of America the Beautiful.

Can any of us doubt that our sight is clearer, our hearing much sharper, and our inner sensitivities more penetrating because one blind child resolved to rise above physical blindness to the most dizzying mental, emotional and spiritual heights imaginable?

Los Angeles, naturally, had the funeral celebration of Ray Charles on Friday, June 18, involving Hollywood's stellar corps of celebrities and notables. Frankly, their rejoicing seemed a bit tame compared to what went down here in New Orleans where Ray really caught fire and recorded at J & M Studios on Rampart St. throughout his career.

Mayor C. Ray Nagin proclaimed Saturday Ray Day, touching off Second Lines and celebrations in several areas of town. We had an awesome, joy-filled, memorial service here at St. Augustine Church, highlighted by Davell Crawford's version of Georgia and Allen Toussaint's teaming up with Juanita Brooks' quartet for a down-home medley.

Just reading and listening to everyone all around, we are eternally grateful to God for the extraordinary gift of our brother Ray Charles and his transcendent music.

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

Demons do exist!

In this modern day and time, are there such things as demons? Does demonic activity reveal it self in our daily lives? Does evil spirits trouble us in strange ways?

Maybe the demonic world was only active in the Bible days.

Is there such things as demon possession? Can a Christian be demon possessed?

The demons Jesus dealt with; are they still here on earth?

Who controls these fallen angels we call evil spirits, demons, ghost?

Why do they want to make themselves known?

Are there such things as haunted houses?

Can evil spirits impersonate human beings?

Yes, there is a demonic world that Satan controls. His purpose is to fight against God's people, and destroying mankind. Satan hates the church and all that it stands for.

The so-called haunted houses have demon activity to confuse man to believe; that this is their dwelling; their right to have an existence.

Some evil spirits impersonate members of the family that have died. They do this in sight and smell.

Which of course is unspiritual. The Bible says, It is appointed unto man once to die, and then the judgment. Heb. 9:27.

The born again believers cannot be possessed by a demon. He can however be troubled by one. When the believer uses the powerful name of Jesus against the powers of darkness, they will flee.

Who are demon possessed?

People like Adolph Hitler, Saddam Hussein, erratic muslim fanatics, and the like.

Satan would like to see America be defeated. The powers of darkness are at work through demon possessed people; to stop American forces from setting people free. Eph. 6:12.

The American Armed Forced need our prayer.

The "Word" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Conversion to Christianity

While driving, you have probably seen what appeared to be a big pool of water in the road. But when you came to the place, no water. It was only a mirage. If you are really thirsty and you chase a mirage, you will be sorely disappointed. The thirst for things in the world is like that. When you thirst for a better job, more money, another car, more expensive clothes and a bigger house ... ; the list could go on and on! When you really thirst for such things because the grass looks greener in your neighbor's yard, you usually wind up disappointed. Why? Because such things are a mirage! They don't give the lasting pleasure you think they will. That's why many folks turn to alcohol and drugs. They think drinking or popping pills will give them a more lasting sense of contentment. But again, if you take this route, you will be sorely disappointed. You will be chasing a mirage! You see, there is only one person who can really quench your thirst for lasting contentment. That person is the Lord Jesus Christ. Listen to what He said to a woman who was drawing water from a well, "Everyone who drinks of this water shall thirst again; but whoever drinks of the water which I shall give him shall never thirst, but the water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up into eternal life" (John 4:13-14). Jesus is talking about satisfying all your innermost cravings. He doesn't necessarily mean that He will give you a new car or a new house. But He'll do something far better. He'll give you the gift of His Holy Spirit. God's Spirit in you will fill you with a peace that passes understanding.

[illegible] work recognized in statewide Law Day contest

Twenty-two public school students won overall awards in the 2004 Law Day Art Contest, held recently in celebration of Law Day USA that is recognised annually on May 1. With the theme, "Your Vote - Your Voice," the contest was open to grades one through 12.

Nearly 500 students from public and private schools throughout Mississippi participated in the statewide contest, which was sponsored by the Mississippi Bar and local bar associations.

Judges selected overall winners in each grade level from the first, second and third place local school winners. During Law Week, May 1-7, the overall winners' artwork decorated the lobby of the Mississippi State Capitol. The May-June issue of The Mississippi Lawyer magazine, a publication of The Mississippi Bar, featured first and second place overall winners.

By participating in the contest, students have the opportunity to learn more about law in a fun and interesting way. "This contest is a blessing, and it builds character-it is a voice and has my vote," said Darren Black, 3rd place winner and 11th grade student at Noxubee County High School (Macon).

"Thanks for all you do to give students the opportunity to showcase their talent and to educate them on the importance of the laws of [illegible]," said [illegible] to contest sponsors.

To view the first place winners in each grade level, go to The Mississippi Bar's Web site at www.msbar.org/lawday.php, and also find a link to Law Day USA Brief Facts.

Village People, the Trammps, bring disco back to Casino Magic BSL

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Seventies disco icons, The Village People will perform two shows with The Trammps July 3rd and 4th at 9 p.m. at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

If you think our fireworks are hot, wait until you see the "Disco Inferno" these two super-groups churn up as they crank out hits like: "YMCA," "Macho Man," "In the Navy," and of course, "Disco Inferno." Plus, many, many more! Tickets are available for $14.95, $19.95 and $24.95 at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or through any Ticketmaster outlet.

What do a cowboy, a construction worker, a Native American, a biker, a police officer and a G.I. have in common? Hits like "YMCA," "Macho Man," "Go West" and "In the Navy" of course!

The Village People formed in the late 70's when producer/composer Jacques Morali found Felipe Rose dancing in his Indian costume in a crowd in New York's Greenwich Village. Rose's special visual attraction inspired the idea to put together a group of Village icons from various American social groups.

Soon after, Morali saw Victor Willis in Broadway's The Wiz and recruited him to portray the police officer. Willis brought along his friend, Alex Briley to play a G.I. With partner Henri Belolo, Morali held auditions for three more performers and The Village People released their first self-titled record in 1977. Willis was later replaced by Ray Simpson, and presently Jeff Olson plays the cowboy, David Hodo is the construction worker and Eric Anzalone completes the six as the biker.

After 27 years together, the Village People have sold more than 65 million recordings and been featured in a variety of magazines and television shows.

The Trammps began their disco dreams in Philadelphia in 1972 and still tour today with four of the original members: Jimmy Ellis, Harold Wade, Stanley Wade and John Hart. The group's best known song was "Disco Inferno" which was featured in the motion picture Saturday Night Fever and earned the group a Grammy Award in 1979. Other Trammps songs to chart included: "Where Happy People Go," "The Night the Lights Went Out" and "I Feel Like I've Been Livin' (On the Dark Side of the Moon)."

Don't miss the Village People and The Trammps at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis July 3rd & 4th! Must be 21 to attend.

Hancock County has plenty to celebrate

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The past year has been a productive one for Hancock County, with many long-awaited projects coming to fruition or moving closer to a starting date.

A mile-long stretch of new sand beach was recently completed, extending west from Bayou Caddy. The new beach will not only serve to protect the beach road from dangerous erosion and washouts, but as a boost to the economic development of the area nearby.

Efforts to begin construction on a new casino complex at Bayou Caddy are well underway and developers plan to open the new Silver Slipper Casino in July of 2005. Also planned for the area is a two-tower condominium complex, now just in the beginning stages of design. Re-nourishment projects are planned for much of the remaining beach, with a refurbishing project planned for a small stretch of beach at Clermont Harbor.

The tourist industry is an important part of the county's economy and many visitors return each year to Hancock County. Visitors from colder climates often make Hancock County their second home in the winter, so area parks are continually being upgraded to accommodate both locals and visitors.

This year the county added an additional 30 RV sites at McLeod Park, bringing the total number of sites to around 100. The park sits on the Jourdan River just north of I-10. Another popular camping site is Buccaneer State Park on Beach Blvd. in Waveland. Both feature fully equipped bath houses and other amenities.

The past year has also seen many upgrades to area piers which extend into the Mississippi Sound and are open to the public. Public piers are located at Dunbar St. in Bay St. Louis, Washington St. in Bay St. Louis, Terrace Ave. in Waveland and in Clermont Harbor.

"The World's Largest Plane" lands recently at Stennis International Airport.

Hancock County's historic courthouse in downtown Bay St. Louis recently underwent extensive renovations.

The Bayou Caddy Marina offers safe harbor for boat storage as well as a boat launch. Expansions are planned to add even more slips. Other boat launches and piers too numerous to name are scattered along area rivers and waterways and are accessible to the public. Many of these have also been upgraded over the past year.

As county residents become more health conscious, walking tracks become more numerous. Residents can pursue their goals of fitness on tracks along the beach, in front of the Hancock Medical Center, at Gulfview and East Hancock Elementary Schools, and at the Leetown Community Center.

A track is also planned for the Hancock County Public Library Branch in Kiln.

The county is also home to the Equine Center and Livestock Arena. The arena, recently equipped with a state of the art speaker system, new holding stalls and RV sites for out of town event participants, features rodeo events, dog, horse, and livestock shows, competition events, music festivals, and more featured throughout the year. The facility is open to residents for training and practice between events.

Perhaps the most famous "resident" of Hancock County (besides, of course, football player Brett Favre) is Stennis Space Center, home for NASA's rocket testing facility. The center also houses many related businesses such as Lockheed Martin, and the Boeing Co., as well as related agencies such as the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command and our own SEALs unit Special Boat Team 22.

The center is also home to a branch of the University of Southern Mississippi.

A new multi-million dollar science and technology center will open in conjunction with the Space Center next to the Mississippi Welcome Center on I-10.

The state-of-the-art center will feature interactive learning for children of all ages and should be open to the public in 2007.

With the hopes that more technology related businesses will be locating closer to the Space Center, developers recently began work on a new Technology Park at the intersection of Hwy. 603 and I-10. A groundbreaking was held in May for the first two buildings. Artist's rendering of the proposed project show quality construction and attractive landscaping.

Already built, at the adjoining Stennis International Airport, with its 8,500 ft. runway, is a 10,000 sq.ft. technology building which was preleased before construction was completed. The airport is home to many general aviation enthusiasts.

County officials hope that a new connector road, Texas Flat Rd., which runs just north of the runway will be paved and ready for use this year. Rights-of-way acquisitions have held up progress on the project. The road will serve to connect the airport with the Stennis Space Center at the Lockheed Martin site.

Port Bienville Industrial Park is located in the Southwest section of the county and is the long time home of shipping company Linear Peninsular, GE Plastics, its own rail line and more.

Christmas time brings a unique celebration to the Kiln community. Area equine enthusiasts saddle up their horses and hitch up their wagons to bring Santa to town country style. The Pearlington community also loves a parade and celebrates with two, one at Christmas time and one at Easter.

Hancock County is also an area rich in history.

The nearly 100-year-old County Courthouse in downtown Bay St. Louis is just part of the rich history that makes up the area. History enthusiasts should take the time to visit the Hancock County Historical Society, across from the courthouse, for a more detailed look into what has made Hancock County the special place that it is.

Stennis fueling Hancock's growth

Artist's renderings for the proposed 72,000 square-foot, $35 million Infinity facility which will be constructed at the Hancock County. The project is currently scheduled for a 2005 groundbreaking and is set to open in early 2007.

Latest project takes county to 'Infinity' – and beyond

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

In the first unveiling of a new state-of-the-art science and visitor center in May, director of Stennis Space Center retired Admiral Tom Donaldson took guests on a virtual, three-dimensional journey from outer space to the actual project site along Interstate 10.

The $35 million, 72,000 square foot facility named Infinity at NASA Space Center, is scheduled to open early in 2007 with site preparation scheduled to begin this summer with a formal groundbreaking in 2005. Infinity will be the only one if its kind.

"It brings exploration and discovery to life for visitors of all ages, who look at our world from many perspectives," said Leo W. Seal, Jr., Chairman of MAST. "We are breaking new ground in science education that we hope will draw new waves of explorers into careers in science, engineering and math."

"Nations who explore are nations who lead - nations who cease to explore take their place and are led," said – Education Program Development Director at Stennis Space Center John Wilson. "All children are born scientists with a sense of wonder. The wonderful world of discovery must be awake in all of us for all of our lives."

The project concept and design result from a public-private partnership between NASA and MAST, Inc., a non profit organization chartered by a group of area business leaders to work with NASA on the project.

Visitors will explore three primary galleries: Earth, science and oceans focused on three common themes: Remote sensing, testing, and planning and protecting.

The center is expected to be fun, dynamic and immersive, attracting a diverse array of visitors. It will incorporate assets of StenniSphere and the Educator Resource Center.

The design for the center comes from one of the world's foremost experiential design firms, ESI Design founded by Dr. Edwin Schlossberg and based in New York. NASA funded $5 million to date for the center and has budgeted another $4 million toward completion of the project. MAST has begun raising the remaining $26 million through public and private gifts.

A recreation market analysis study conducted by Harrison Price indicates that INFINITY is expected to draw 260,000 to 362,000 visitors annually and become financially self sufficient.

The John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) in Hancock County is one of ten NASA field centers in the United States. It is NASA's primary center for testing and flight certifying rocket propulsion systems for the Space Shuttle and future generations of space vehicles. Because of its important role in engine testing for four decades, Stennis Space Center is NASA's program manager for rocket propulsion testing with total responsibility for conducting and/or managing all NASA propulsion test programs.

Stennis Space Center tests all Space Shuttle Main Engines. These high-performance, liquid-fueled engines provide most of the total impulse needed during the shuttle's eight and one-half-minute-flight to orbit. All shuttle main engines must pass a series of test firings at Stennis Space Center prior to being installed in the back of the orbiter.

Stennis Space Center began "re-inventing government" decades ago before the concept became popular. Over the years, SSC has evolved into a multiagency, multidisciplinary center for federal, state, academic and private organizations engaged in space, oceans, environmental programs and the national defense. In addition to NASA, there are 30 other agencies located at Stennis.

Of approximately 4,500 employees, about 1,600 work in the fields of science and engineering.

These agencies work side by side and share common costs related to infrastructure, facility and technical services, thus making it cheaper for each to accomplish its independent mission at SSC.

NASA Stennis Space Center (SSC) is a significant source of employment and income in the local area. If SSC had not been in operation in 2003, considering both direct and indirect effects, a very conservative estimate of reduction in employment for the local area would be 28,679 jobs.

A similar conservative estimate indicates that personal income would have been reduced by more than $1.006 billion, and retail sales would have been reduced by $402 million. It is estimated that SSC has a tax revenue impact on local government revenues of $109 million, according to a study released in March 2004 and conducted by Dr. Charles A. Campbell, professor of economics at Mississippi State University.

Among other recent accomplishments:

- The Integrated Powerhead Demonstrator (IPD) Test Team at NASA Stennis Space Center (SSC) received a prestigious national award March 11 as recognition for a significant contribution to the U.S. space program. IPD Project Manager Dr. Harry Ryan accepted a Stellar Award from the Rotary National Award for Space Achievement (RNASA) Foundation at its 18th annual National Space Trophy Dinner in Houston.
- The Explorer Schools program was established in 2003 to forge ties between NASA and teachers and administrators from diverse communities. Bay-Waveland Middle School is one of only 50 schools around the country and five from Mississippi chosen for the three-year partnership. The program's aim is to increase student interest in math, science and technology, and to educate them about careers in those fields.

NAVOCEANO aids in Iraq military mission, welcomes new leader and technologies

NAVOCEANO CHARTS PLANE: The plane houses sensors that Naval Oceanographic Office surveyors use to chart terrain and shallow-water areas for the U.S. Navy.

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO), located at the John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC), is responsible for providing oceanographic knowledge and services to all elements of the Department of Defense.

Employing nearly 1,000 local residents, NAVOCEANO is home to one of the largest supercomputers in the world and a premier oceanographic library. More oceanographers work at Stennis Space Center than any other place in the world.

In recent months, the Command has continued to provide invaluable support to U.S. Forces in mission areas worldwide, surveying the world's oceans and expanding oceanographic technologies. The Navy Command is also welcoming a new commanding officer, Capt. Jeffery Best, a Bay St. Louis resident, who is returning home after a two-year assignment in Tennessee and Washington D.C.

Capt. Best will assume command of NAVOCEANO in a July 2 ceremony and hopes to continue the success of the large military and civilian organization.

"It's exciting to return to SSC and have the opportunity to lead such a dynamic organization. Nobody does operational oceanography better than the employees of Naval Oceanographic Office, and I am proud to become their next leader," said Best.

CAPT. JEFFERY BEST will take command of the Naval Oceanographic Office at the John C. Stennis Space Center in a July 2 ceremony.

SUPPORT TO U.S. FORCES IN IRAQ

As reconstruction efforts continue in Iraq, U.S. Forces must be able to operate safely and effectively, and NAVOCEANO products play an important role in supporting safe navigation of U.S. Forces within Iraq's ports, harbors and riverways.

Being tied into ongoing operations, NAVOCEANO fulfilled more than 300 requests for products during Operation Iraqi Freedom (OIF). These requests included data, charts and imagery from more than 50 military units before and during the operation.

To acquire the data used in the products, NAVOCEANO civilian and military surveyors conducted oceanographic ship surveys in waterways and ports in Iraq. Vessels also deployed drifting oceanographic buoys in the Persian Gulf prior to OIF to collect data needed to build charts and other products needed by our military personnel in the region.

The Command continues to support our nation's forces in the region and worldwide. To ensure effective oceanographic support and the safety of deployed forces, NAVOCEANO maintains a 24/7 customer support and production capability. During OIF, analysts in the NAVOCEANO Warfighting Support Center processed more than 1,500 satellite images and compiled information used to build tailored products for warfighters operating in the coastal and riverine areas of Iraq.

REMOTE SENSING IN HANCOCK COUNTY

South Mississippi's emerging reputation as a remote sensing center is being enhanced with a new remote sensing center of expertise located in Hancock County, home to NAVOCEANO's newest generation of airborne sensors—Compact Hydrographic Airborne Rapid Total Survey, or CHARTS.

Mounted and flown aboard an aircraft, the CHARTS system is state-of-the-art, complete with sensors that map terrain and chart shallow-water areas for the Navy fleet. The resulting product makes it safer and easier for military forces to navigate in shal-

OCEANS ALIVE – More than 40 students from across the nation recently participated in OCEANS ALIVE, an educational program aboard a Naval oceanographic survey ship in the Gulf of Mexico. low-water areas around land.

To bring remote sensing technology closer to home, NAVOCEANO partnered with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, NOAA and private companies Fugro Chance, Inc. and Optech to build a new remote sensing facility in Hancock County. Located at the Stennis International Airport, the Joint Airborne Lidar Bathymetry Technical Center of Expertise, will leverage resources among Navy, Army and NOAA to meet each organization's mapping and charting needs while promoting airborne remote sensing technology.

A NEW WAY TO MAP THE OCEAN

NAVOCEANO surveys the world's oceans with ships, buoys, aircraft, satellite sensors and many more high-tech tools. The Command's newest way to survey the ocean depths is the Subsurface Autonomous Mapping System (SAMS), a portable autonomous underwater vehicle that collects deep-sea data. SAMS is small and efficient and makes surveys more cost-efficient, simple and flexible for the Navy.

NAVOCEANO surveyors are currently using SAMS to survey deep ocean areas while new systems with even more capabilities are being tested. The newer version of SAMS will soon be fitted with cameras that will give NAVOCEANO surveyors real-time images of the ocean environment and will assist them in passing a "complete picture" on to Navy Forces who need to know their surroundings from top to bottom.

Community Outreach and Education

While NAVOCEANO's focus is to support the military, the Command also focuses on outreach and education on a local and national scale. NAVOCEANO supports education in Hancock County through several outreach programs.

During the past year, NAVOCEANO naval and civilian employees have been active in local schools in supporting science fairs, class presentations and career fairs. Employees also serve as officials and tutors for the regional competition of the National Ocean Science Bowl at J.L. Scott Aquarium in Biloxi, Miss. Additionally, local students and teachers joined others from across the nation to experience naval oceanography aboard an oceanographic survey vessel as participants in the OCEANS ALIVE program.

NAVOCEANO personnel also remain active in the local community by participating in events like the Mississippi Coastal Clean-Up, Celebrate the Gulf and hosting the 2004 Area III Special Olympics at Stennis Space Center. During the holidays, food items are donated to the residents of Bay St. Louis and Waveland through the NAVOCEANO Share Thanksgiving food drive, and the Command's annual Toys for Tots drive collects toys for Hancock County foster children.

NAVOCEANO continues to contribute to our nation's defense efforts and plays a significant role in supporting the local communities where employees live and work.

HMC: Exciting year of progress ahead

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Visitors to Hancock Medical Center will soon notice a flurry of construction activity when a long-awaited renovation plan is set into motion.

The $8 million project targets several key areas including emergency, outpatient services and surgery departments. Final revisions to the plan are in the hands of the architect, and construction bids will be solicited by late summer, according to Administrator Hal W. Leftwich, DBA, FACHE.

"Some work will be done by our talented facilities services staff, to reduce the overall expenditure and maximize the value our community receives for its investment in our expanding facility," said Leftwich.

One major improvement will divide the outpatient and emergency registration areas, which currently share a lobby. The patient volume has more than doubled since the lobby opened nearly ten years ago, sometimes resulting in a crowded waiting area. The outpatient registration will relocate to the Drinkwater Boulevard entrance where the hospital gift shop is currently located.

"Our goal is for an outpatient to register and receive care quickly and easily," said Leftwich, emphasizing the plan focuses on convenient access. Emergency patients will register in a renovated lobby facing Highway 90.

The dining room will expand to accommodate a growing number of patrons, and a new gift shop and chapel are planned for the north Drinkwater entrance.

Infrastructure upgrades include improvements to the heating, ventilation and air-conditioning system, to increase energy efficiency and enhance infection control management. New wallcoverings and flooring will brighten areas showing wear and tear.

Several ancillary offices will be relocated to the third floor of the Rev. Charles R. Johnson pavilion, making way for expansion of outpatient services.

NEW TECHNOLOGY

"We are constantly seeking ways to ensure patient safety," Leftwich noted, adding patient wrist bands and medications will soon be bar-coded as an extra precaution. The measure results from planned upgrades to the hospital information (computer) system.

MOCK DISASTER – Hancock Medical Center earned praise for response to the Lifesaver 2004 Homeland Security/National Disaster Medical System (NDMS) exercise sponsored in May by local, state and federal agencies. Hospital personnel were called upon to demonstrate ability to respond to a simulated chemical attack, and to decontaminate, triage and treat affected "victims." The exercise is one of many disaster preparedness drills the hospital conducts throughout the year.

In addition, physicians will be able to retrieve more information quickly from their offices as a result of the upgrade.

HMC's diagnostic imaging department is installing a Picture Archival and Communications System (PACS) that will provide digital x-ray, ultrasound, CT and MRI images to local physicians, on a CD or over the internet, instead of on film. Whether in the hospital, or at their offices, imaging technology will be easily available immediately after a study is complete.

GROWING MEDICAL COMMUNITY

The hospital recently welcomed new board certified pediatrician Scott Needle of Bay St. Louis Pediatrics. The Baltimore native and his family relocated to Waveland and have been warmly received by residents. Corneal specialist and ophthalmologist Sheila Gerogiannis joined Koskan Eye Clinic in Bay St. Louis earlier this year. HMC is currently recruiting other specialists to join the local medical community.

The hospital's emergency room is staffed 24 hours by a physician and support staff of certified trauma professionals. A second physician is on duty during peak times in an ambulatory emergency area. Last year, combined visits totaled more than 26,000. The hospital also participates in a coast-wide trauma network.

The 104-bed acute care facility is fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

ACCESSIBLE CARE

The hospital operates three clinics to make medical care available in different parts of the county. The Hancock Family Care Center, in the Kiln community, is staffed by a nurse practitioner and registered nurse. The clinic takes walk-ins and is open Monday through Friday for patients of all ages.

In the westernmost part of Hancock County, Hancock Medical Services is located near the entrance to Port Bienville Industrial Park in Pearlington. Employers on site use the clinic for occupational and medical health needs. Health care is also provided for residents of the surrounding communities of Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore and Ansley.

The Hancock Multispecialty Clinic in the Diamondhead community provides office space for specialists such as internal medicine and ENT, while Hancock Outpatient Rehab Services at Diamondhead offers a full range of physical, occupational and speech therapy. The clinic also features aquatic therapy in an indoor swimming pool conducted by a therapist certified by the Arthritis Foundation.

A healthy workforce is the goal of HMC WellnessWorks, an employee health program focusing on injury prevention and intervention, wellness and health promotions, information /service coordination and provider orientation and training. For additional information, call (228) 467-8079.

PARTNERS IN HEALTH – Hanccck Medical Center and local public schools join hands to provide 11 school clinics staffed by HMC nurses. Thousands of student visits are logged each month in the popular program.

Hancock County Tourism shoots for the stars

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The "Stars are Born in Hancock County" program is just one of the ways that the Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau will be promoting tourism in the county over the next year. Recent studies show that the friendliness of locals is one of the highest-rated experiences that visitors to the county talk about and the bureau wants to reward the people that make it possible.

The bureau will publicly recognize individual citizens that quietly promote the area and tourism in the area. The honors will be awarded periodically to very deserving individuals who shine brightly by their courtesies and acts of kindness to the county's visitors, said director of the bureau Beth Carriere. The promotion will begin this month in honor of National Tourism Month.

Hancock County's star is rising. In 2003 alone, the county welcomed more than 3 million visitors – that's more than 8,200 epople per day.

Stars will receive "I am a Star" T-shirts and a sign for their front yard or place of business, gifts, recognition and more. You may participate by reporting hospitable acts or by contributing gift certificates, etc. at 228-463-9222.

Tourism accounts for one out of every eight jobs in Hancock County and is the state's largest private sector employer, according to a bureau report. In 2003 tourists spent $6.3 billion dollars and tourism produced $498 million in state tax revenues and $144 million in city and county tax revenues statewide.

The Hancock County Bureau spent $210,000 on advertising and marketing in our area in 2003 and well exceeded the state model for producing $13 in revenues for every dollar spent, the report said, or well over $2.7 million for the county.

On average, more than 3 million people visit the county each year.

The results of a 2002/2003 survey of visitors living outside the state or at least 30 miles from Hancock County showed that the county was the primary vacation destination for a little more than half of those visitors. Some 77 percent were repeat visitors and just under half stayed in the county for at least one night.

RV parks accounted for the overnight stay of the largest number of visitors, with the casino hotel following closely behind. Visitors

Find yourself at Hancock Historical Society

BY GEOFF BELCHER

Hancock County has a long and proud history, and it's being preserved daily at the Hancock County Historical Society at 108 Cue St. in downtown Bay St. Louis.

Pictures from the past, historical documents and an ongoing log of current Hancock residents and properties are on display, at the society building from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The society - housed in the historic Kate Lobrano house is always looking for new members, but its collections and monthly luncheons are also open to non-members.

Among its many activities, the society works to restore and identify area grave sites and hosts the Cedar Rest Cemetery Tour each year on Halloween night.

Recently, the society became the repository for the Anthony J. "Tony" Scafidi Photo Collection.

Scafidi, of Bay St. Louis, began his photo career as a hobby before becoming a professional in the late 1940s and 50s.

Several months ago, the Historical Society acquired a Samsonite suitcase of Scafidi negatives in excellent condition, according to Charles Gray, executive director.

Gray said that Scafidi died in 1969. His works were stored away in attics and sheds eluding the society's most valiant efforts to find them until earlier this year.

"Now through the generosity of Scafidi's brother, Sam, and his wife, Barbara Scafidi, of Bay St. Louis, his (Tony Scafidi's) work will be displayed," Gray said.

Since acquiring the negatives, volunteers have worked many hours, first cleaning the negatives then scanning them and then printing them.

However, several hundred of Scafidi's photos have yet to be identified. The society wants your help - just stop by during regular hours and see if you can find yourself.

The society is also planning a bus trip on July 22 to Jackson to view the historic Dresden exhibit. Tickets for the trip are just $7, but slots are filling up quick.

Bay St. Louis in midst of building boom

BY JOHN WATERMAN and MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writers

Over the past year, the city of Bay St. Louis has implemented several plans that should go a long way to improving the community.

Mayor Eddie Favre said this past year has been a good one for the town.

"I think it went really well for the city. We're getting back on solid financial ground. There's been a lot of growth inside the city."

The city's annextion drive, which should effectively triple the size of Bay St. Louis, is still in effect.

The plan would annex the entire Highway 603 corridor from US 90 to just north of I-10. All neighborhoods and land east of 603 would also be incorporated into the county.

Favre said the project was still in the works, and would be heard by the courts later this year.

"Everybody's still working on it," Favre said. "The court date is on Nov. 29. Both cases (Bay St. Louis' and Waveland's) will be heard at the same time."

Earlier this month, Bay St. Louis officials signed a contract to buy a key piece of Beach Boulevard property Tuesday, and signed off on a separate major development just down the street.

The back-to-back events likely signal a coming boom in downtown tourism and business.

After years of negotiating and wishing it could get title to a vacant tract next to the Fire Dog Saloon, City Council signed a contract to buy it for $329,000, plus this year's taxes on the property. Included in the deal is a lot just across the street which will be used as a public access way to the beach.

The beach by the American Legion Pier at Washington St. and directly in front of Da Beach House is one of the most popular spots on the Coast year-round, for visitors and locals alike.

The properties are a key part of a multi-million plan the city has to bolster downtown business activity. As financing becomes available, leaders want to build a boardwalk stretching in both directions along the beach, a "finger pier" to accommodate short-term boat traffic, and a parking garage with some retail spaces in front.

Meanwhile, area residents should see construction begin this summer on a four-story structure between Trapani's Restaurant and the vacant movie theater at State Street and North Beach Boulevard.

The building will include six hotel rooms and four condominiums that may be rented as hotel accommodations too.

Chet LeBlanc, the developer of nearby Chapel Hill residential community.

said he has bank financing lined up for the new building, and buyers for the condos that will range in price from $365,000 to $380,000. The high-end hotel rooms will be priced from $80 to $400 a night, depending on the season and room location,, he said.

With two retail spaces and a lobby included, the four-story building comes to around 14,200 square feet. It will rise some 47 feet and cost between $2.5 million and $3 million to build.

Also this year, a $2 million bond issue was passed to allow the city to begin numerous road and drainage projects. Many damaged roads have already been resurfaced, and still more will be dealt with later in the summer.

"From the standpoint of continuing with the capital improvements plan, we're getting back to paving the streets that need resurfacing all around the city."

Main Street, however, will not be resurfaced until after October, so as not to interfere with the yearly antique car celebration, "Cruisin' The Coast," which will run from Oct. 3 to 10. During that week, Bay St. Louis will be packed with antique cars of all makes, models and decorations. Live music and other entertainment will also be featured.

After Cruisin', "One of our biggest (projects) will be the

Other festivities around the Bay include Our Lady of the Gulf's Annual Crab Festival, which will be held on the weekend of July 4th. The festival will feature seafood, games and amusement park rides for the kids.

Waveland breaking all the records

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The past year has been one of unprecedented growth in Hancock County and the City of Waveland is no exception. The seaside town of just over 6,500 residents has seen an explosion of growth, yet managed to hold on to its small town feel.

Much of the commercial growth has taken place along Hwy. 90, with new businesses bringing along road and lighting improvements. Even the movement of Wal-Mart to the its new super center – which left a large vacant building at the corner of Hwy. 90 and 603 – turned out to be an opportunity when Pearl River Community College announced that it would locate a Hancock County Branch of the college at that location. Classes are scheduled to begin at the new center in the fall.

A California-based developer is also interested in using a portion of the building for retail shops.

In June, the city approved a $5.3 million bond issue which, when matched with state and federal grant funds, will allow the city to undertake some $17 million worth of capital improvement projects.

Projects include a state of the art Sewer System Hydraulic Model to assist with prioritizing sewer projects; lighting along the city's portion of Hwy. 90 and Hwy. 603; a state-of-the-art model in conjunction with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; an overlay, striping, sidewalk and drainage project at Old Spanish Trail and downtown Coleman Ave., and the realignment, striping and overlay and drainage on Nicholson Ave.; a $1 million-plus sewer extension project; a capital improvement project to meet the current and future demands for city water; the rehab of existing sewer infrastructure; continuing rehabilitation of the Old Waveland School which will serve as a civic center; recreation projects in city parks, and greenway projects at the city entrances.

Already completed are renovations to City Hall and the City Hall Annex and improvements and expansions at the city's public pier, The Garfield Ladner Pier at the foot of Terrace Ave. The 860-feet long pier sports six picnic pagodas and indoor restroom and shower facilities. One block down, at the foot of Coleman Ave. is the Veteran's Memorial honoring all the veterans in Hancock County. The city has plans to continue a bike/foot path which now ends at the pier.

While continuing to grow within its present boundaries, with both commercial ventures and new housing, the city is also seeking to annex new territory, including a commercial area along Hwy. 603. The city recently created a new commercial district along another thoroughfare, the Kiln-Waveland cutoff road, which links Hwy. 90 with Hwy. 603.

Downtown Coleman Ave. boasts a recently renovated branch of the Hancock Public Library, as well as parks, restaurants, retail shops, antique stores, and other businesses. The avenue is the center for much of the fun in town and for the Coleman Ave. Coalition, an organization of local merchants who banded together to work for the promotion of small businesses.

The Coalition sponsors an annual Spruce Up the Avenue clean-up and trash can painting contest and the annual Labor Day Wave Fest celebration in connection with the city, as well as many other activities.

The year's festivities begin with Mardi Gras celebrations and the Nereids Parade. An all-women's crew founded in the 1960s, the Nereids hold their parade two Sundays before Mardi Gras day. The parade has grown so large that it is now held on Hwy. 90.

In March, the Waveland Civic Association hosts its annual St. Patrick's Day Parade on Coleman Ave. Leprechauns come out in mass to catch and to throw cabbages, potatoes, onions, carrots, and even a corned beef as well as the usual beads and trinkets. Just make sure to watch for the flying cabbages.

The year continues with the annual Paws on Parade Easter dog parade sponsored by Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County and the city. The event features dogs in costume, competitions, booths, and other activities and raises money for the local shelter. Revenue from friends helped the city open a new spay/neuter clinic. Any dog and its owner may participate in the fun.

Spruce Up the Avenue follows usually in April with a fun day of clean-up and painting of trash cans that will be placed around the city and along the beach. Children of all ages are encouraged to participate in the creative event.

In June, American Legion Post 77 holds its Annual Children's Fishing Rodeo at the Garfield Ladner Pier. Kids up to age 17 compete to see who can catch the big one and prizes and refreshments are provided at the end of the day.

After a brief rest from the heat, Wave Fest starts the fun all over again on Labor Day weekend with a day of food, arts and crafts booths, children's activities, performances, bands and more. The day comes to perfect ending at the beach where the city sponsors an annual fire works display.

In October, the city will be a new destination for the week-long Crusin the Coast celebration, which attracts thousands of antique and vintage cars and trucks to the Gulf Coast. This will be the city's first year to be a participant in the event.

The year ends with the annual Festival of Lights Celebration sponsored by the city on the second Saturday in December. A Christmas Parade brings Santa and Mrs. Claus to the steps of city hall to visit with the children. Local school and church choirs provide holiday music.

This year the city will attempt to break the Guinness Book of World Records by having more than 519 carolers sing for more than 16 minutes and 17 seconds, the current world record.

Hancock schools 'exemplary' and 'superior'

BY JOHN WATERMAN
Staff Writer

The Hancock County School system continued to live up to its tradition of academic and extracurricular excellence during the 2003-04 school year.

Every school in the district received very high ratings from the Mississippi Department of Education's school performance classification.

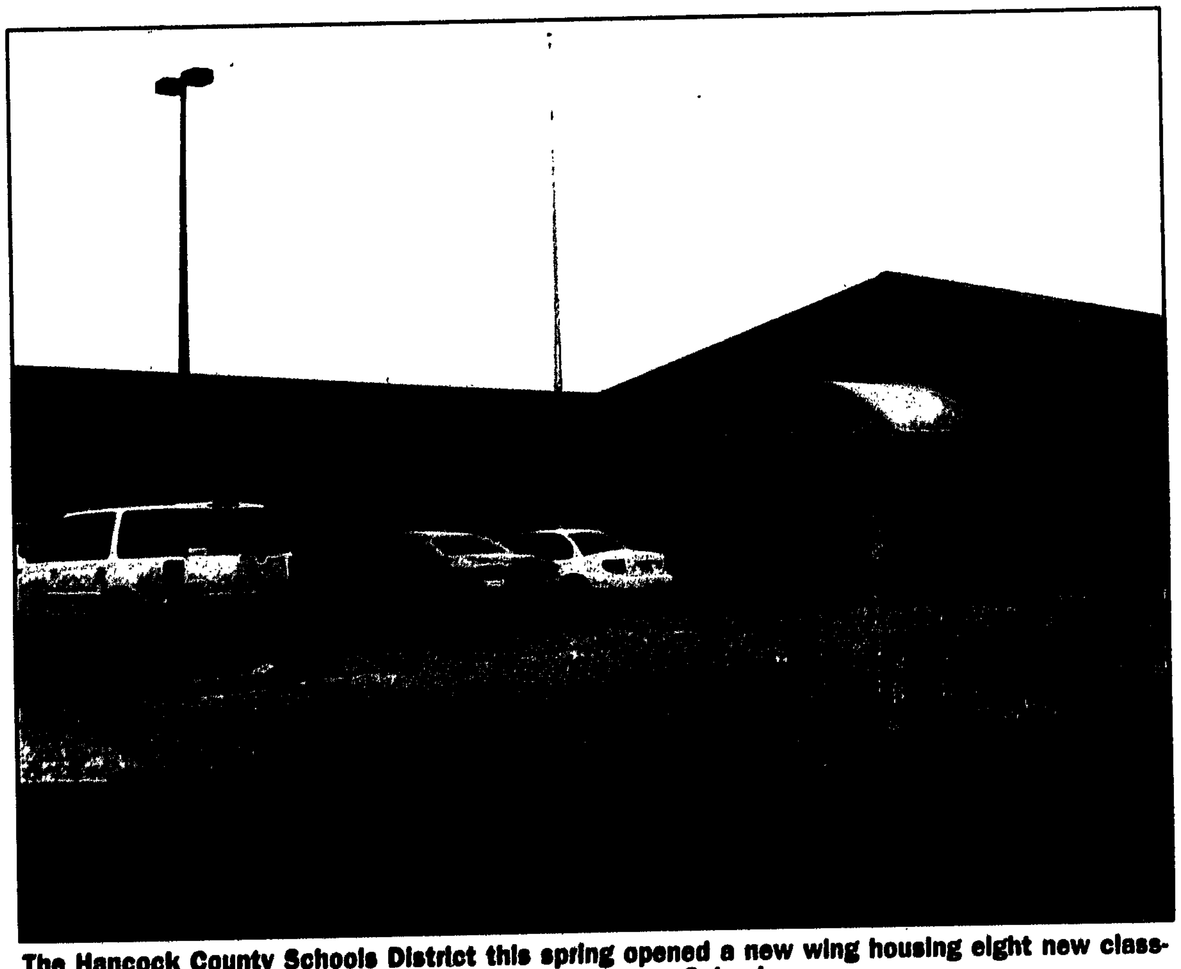
All schools received either "exemplary" or "superior" ratings from the Mississippi Department of education.

Hancock School District Superintendent David Kopf said this school-level component of accountability system was implemented for the first time in the fall of 2003.

"The new accountability standards require individual school performance accreditation levels to be based on two criteria: Meeting an annual growth expectation in student achievement, and the percentage of students scoring at the basic proficient level," Kopf said.

Kopf said many positive factors contributed to the district's success.

"The district's success is based on a supportive community, a committed administration, dedicated professional teachers, hardworking support staff and especially our wonderful students."



The Hancock County Schools District this spring opened a new wing housing eight new classrooms at the award-winning East Hancock Elementary School.

Charles B. Murphy Elementary school, which received a "superior" rating, was placed as the top elementary school in the state during the Third Annual Governor's Awards for Outstanding School-Community Partnerships.

The school implemented a program entitled, "Investing in our future." Through a partnership with Hancock Bank.

"We strive to partner with real business in an effort to bring real world experience to the students," Kopf said.

The district will also be taking part in several programs which will help to maintain this level of performance.

Beginning in October, Sandra Smith, a teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary will take part in a two year-long program which should serve to create new curriculum in art, science and creative writing.

Smith, who teaches first grade, is one of ten teacher consultants involved in the program.

"Ms. Smith's participation in this program compliments and enhances our educational service to our students," Kopf said.

The school system's efforts to ensure the well-being of its students did not end when summer vacation began.

Charles B. Murphy Elementary in Pearlington, Gulfview Elementary in Lakeshore, Hancock North Central Elementary in Kiln, and Hancock Middle School in Kiln will all be taking place in The Summer Feeding Program, a non-profit effort that will provide breakfast and lunch to children 18 years of age and under.

"The summer feeding program is one of many services that our district provides to serve our community. The four schools offering the program are averaging about 125 students a day."

Kopf said the district had also undergone several construction and renovation projects.

"Utilizing an $18,000 grant from the Department of Human Services, the Hancock School District and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors worked together to construct a quarter-mile asphalt track that snakes around the school grounds."

The track is open to the public, as well as students. Kopf said that in August, the track would be used as part of a study to see if such tracks offer health benefits to young children.

A new wing housing eight new classrooms was added to East Hancock Elementary

Bay-Waveland Schools get bigger and better

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland Schools System is home to approximately 2,400 students in grades kindergarten through 12. Every classroom has internet capabilities, broadening the horizon for learning and bringing the world to the fingertips of students and teachers alike. Uniforms are required dress in the district.

The Bay-Waveland board is still considering its proposed budget for the upcoming 2004-2005 fiscal year. Last year, the district's budget included a total projected revenue of $12,183,004. Of that amount, $5,216,260 – or about 43 percent – was financed through total ad valorem taxes.For the next fiscal year, the proposed budget has a total projected revenue of $13,014,368. Of that amount, Stasny said, 44 percent – or $5,758,429 – is proposed to be financed through a total ad valorem tax levy.

In the past year, the district has continued to make great strides toward educational excellence. Waveland Elementary even earned a Level 5 rating from the Mississippi Department of Education after last year's standardized test results – the highest level possible.

The real secret to the district's success, Assistant Superintendent Debbie Cox said, is to work closely with the students and pay attention to their needs.

"In grades K-3," Cox said, "we have small class sizes. We keep our pupil-to-teacher ratio ... under 18-1."

The Bay-Waveland Schools District also utilizes student inter-rated friendliness of residents as the number one best experience, but rated the overall experience and restaurant quality almost as highly. About 93 percent of visitors said they were either satisfied or highly satisfied with their visit.

Carriere says that the bureaus wants to work on getting serious about promoting the county in other areas of the country.

She hopes that a brand new, 36-panel brochure touting the airport, equine center, art community and area festivals and events will do just that. The new brochure will be out next week. The bureau is also looking into Internet advertising.

Currently the bureau offers several tours to casino or tour buses. Tour guides board the bus at the foot of the Hwy. 90. Guides offer several tours designed to give the visitor a glimpse into the history of the area and to enlighten and erase the misconceptions that many people have of the deep south, Carriere said. Visitors are given the chance to visit area churches, cemeteries, shops, galleries and restaurants and fall in love with the romance of the stories they hear, Carriere said.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

Hancock County has a large Catholic population, providing ready access to Catholic Christian Educational opportunities from preschool through grade 12.

Saint Stanislaus College (SSC) is one of the largest Catholic Boarding and Day Schools for Boys in the United States. Est. in 1854, it is a highly rated college preparatory school serving young men in grades 6-12, with a student body of approximately 560 boys. Located at 304 South Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, it is staffed by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart and lay professionals. It provides services to both local residents in a day scholar program and a residency program to those looking for quality board schools. Boarding students are from many states and international areas.

Our Lady Academy (OLA) is a six year Catholic Christian all girls high school staffed by religious Sisters of Mercy and dedicated lay teachers.

Established in 1970, OLA provides a comprehensive education through a college preparatory curriculum. Strong collaboration between OLA and SSC maximizes the academic opportunities to the student body. OLA has also been recognized for very structured athletic programs resulting in several state Championships.

OLA is located in Bay St. Louis behind Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church at 222 South Beach Blvd.

Bay Catholic Elementary and St. Clare Elementary serve grades kindergarten through six grades, and provides a feeder program to the Catholic Christian high school programs. Bay Catholic has a preschool program and a before and after school child care service. St. Clare has an after school service. Bay Catholic is located in Bay St. Louis within the Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church Parish.

St. Clare is located in Waveland within the St. Clare Catholic Church Parish, located at 234 South Beach Bouelvard.

vention teams.

The teams' purpose is to assess the students' needs and designate instructor intervention for those with learning or behavioral issues, Cox said, and to maximize education resources.

The district also has an "exclusion" program and an alternative school, both of which serve to keep students who may have problems in the educational system and not leave them behind.

In grades K-6, all students participate at their respective instructional levels in computer labs.

The district also offers innovative programs and outlets for its students. At Bay High School, for instance, students in broadcast journalism class have a weekly broadcast at the school, in which they report on the week's activities to their fellow students. There are also parent resource centers at three of the district's five schools, which are open to all parents of K-12 students in the district. The centers offer materials and even parenting workshops to help parents meet their children's needs.

Teachers are also the beneficiaries of some of the district's programs, such as the teacher induction/teacher mentoring program. Each first-year teacher is assigned a veteran teacher who takes that person under his or her wing and helps integrate the new teacher into the system.

"This helps support both personal and professional growth," Cox said, and helps smooth the transition into our district and promote a more effective learning environment."

The Bay-Waveland district also excels at extracurricular activities, with strong programs in virtually every competitive sport. The Bay High girls basketball team recently finished the season at second place in the state; and the Bay High Steppers Dance Team earned second place in national competition.

New technological editions are expected in the near future as well. Kopf said, within the next few weeks, the district will receive $22,627 through the Enhancing Education Through Technology Year 2 (E2E2) grant.

Hancock High School will use these funds to purchase graphing calculators, grading software, ACT preparation software, teacher training for A+ software and a 32-pad classroom performance system

Nikki DeLoach

Checking in with Nikki DeLoach

By John Crook

© Zap2it

Actress Nikki DeLoach feels like pinching herself these days.

The vivacious blonde is spending her summer in Hawaii, where she is filming "North Shore," Fox's hot new Monday drama set at the posh Grand Waimea Hotel.

In a cast headed by James Remar, Brooke Burns and newcomer Kristoffer Polaha, DeLoach co-stars as MJ Bevans, the fresh-faced girl next door who is working as a waitress and dreaming of a career as a fashion designer.

"I grew up kind of hanging with the boys, wanting to be as tough as they were and playing sports, so I definitely understand how MJ relates to Jason (Polaha) like he was her big brother," DeLoach says. "MJ and I both have a really good work ethic, too."

While MJ grew up in a troubled home environment, however, DeLoach enjoyed an idyllic childhood in a tightly knit Georgia family.

"I always knew I wanted to entertain," she says. "When I was a child, I had so much energy my parents were always signing me up for anything that might wear me out! I like to think I've calmed down a little. I mean, if you visited now, I probably wouldn't push the furniture aside and start performing."

Her life changed radically at 13 when she won a spot in "The All New Mickey Mouse Club," where her castmates included such future superstars as Britney Spears, Justin Timberlake and Christina Aguilera, along with actor Ryan Gosling.

"I could see the drive in all of our group," DeLoach says. "We all knew we wanted to do this the rest of our lives. But I had no idea of how big some of them would become. I mean, Britney is known all over the world!"

Born: Sept. 9, 1979, in Georgia.

Family ties: Mother is a middle school principal; father runs the family's varied timber and farm businesses; one brother and sister (both younger).

Marital status: Single, with boyfriend.

Education: Currently working on a degree in sociology from University of California, Los Angeles.

Pets: Two cats.

TV credits: "The All New Mickey Mouse Club," "Emerald Cove," "Walker, Texas Ranger" (guest appearance).

Film/TV movie credits: "Traveller," "Gunfighter's Moon," "Never Give Up: The Jimmy V Story," "Longshot."

Where's my tiara?: In 2001, DeLoach was crowned Azalea Festival Queen in Wilmington, N.C.

PBS' 'Bill's Run' is a reminder of local politics

By Jacqueline Cutler

© Zap2it

During a well-oiled presidential campaign, when slick commercials and pitches for donations bombard voters, it is refreshing to see the anatomy of a true grassroots campaign where the candidate's family gathers around the kitchen table to affix stamps on postcards. P.O.V.'s "Bill's Run: A Political Journey in Rural Kansas" airs Tuesday, June 29, on PBS and documents the run of Bill Kassebaum, a farmer, for the state legislature.

This one-hour documentary by the novice politician's brother, Richard, could serve as an antidote for viewers cynical about politics. Listening to Kassebaum speak is restorative because he is so earnest. He seems incapable of speaking in sound bytes.

He works his farm of 250 cows in Burdick, Kan., and also works as an assistant county attorney for Morris County. As the father of two, he worries about school budget cuts. And as a Republican, he is daring - talking about the unappetizing fact that taxes need to be raised to support services.

This is a conservative town in a conservative county and Kassebaum knows this. Yet when asked his stand on abortion rights, he does not try to give an answer that could mean anything to anyone. First his opponent, Shari Weber, says she is against abortion, and that all babies are "gifts from God." Knowing his stance is not going to be popular, Kassebaum says he is pro-choice, believing that abortion is a personal matter.

As is politics, and the adage that all politics is local is evident as Kassebaum visits senior centers and country fairs, shaking hands and talking.

Kassebaum is the youngest child of former U.S. Senator Nancy Landon Kassebaum, who served 18 years in Congress. And she is the daughter of Alf Landon, who, in 1934, was the only incumbent Republican governor to be re-elected in the country.

'Scream Play' fulfills movie [illegible] (and [illegible])

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

It's some time after midnight on the back lot of Universal Studios in Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley. All around are New York City brownstones, storefronts and [illegible], along with a large [illegible] (and [illegible]) [illegible] columns (and, adding to the [illegible] just around the corner is a prop storage area with a [illegible] and a grocery cart big enough to carry a car).

In the midst of these gray structures is a small island of light where the crew of "Scream Play," E! Entertainment Television's entry into the reality-contest genre, is setting up a competition based on the 1993 thriller "Judgment Night," which will likely air on July 11.

The one-hour, 13-episode series premiered on Sunday, June 13, and the basic idea each week is to take a famous movie or TV sequence, create a physical challenge based on it, and give three teams of two contestants a chance to face three such challenges in hopes of winning a cash prize.

On this night, a crane has hoisted a ladder up between the roofs of two buildings. Suspended above the ladder is a series of paint cans. Strapped into a safety harness, contestants must walk along the ladder, unhooking and dropping the paint cans (which land with a very satisfying splat) along the way.

"This stunt is inspired by 'Judgment Night,'" producer Joel Klein says. "It's a film where they're escaping, being chased, so they have to get from one building to the next. They throw this ladder down, and they have to go across it, and the ladder's all creaky."

Throwing in the paint cans not only forces the contestants (which include a cute blond couple wearing matching baggy camouflage pants) to cross standing up, but it also offers a way to score the event. [illegible] they can break into song, like in 'Rocky.'"

Other challenges include a window ledge walk ("The Bourne Identity"); a horse drag and obstacle course ("Animal House"); a dumpster dive for body parts ("CSI: Crime Scene Investigation"); a hot chili pepper eating contest ("Dumb and Dumber"); a tricycle race ("Revenge of the Nerds"); naked broom ball ("Slapshot"); a buffalo spleen buffet ("Dances With Wolves"); and a water rescue ("Baywatch").

Each episode also includes the movie or TV clips that inspired the challenges.

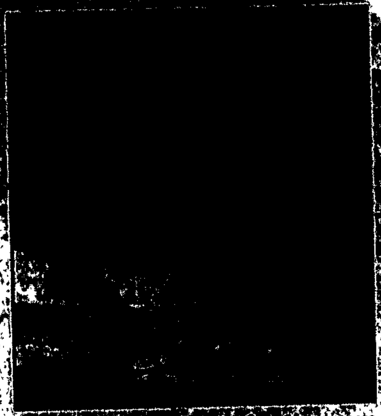
Since Klein and his producing partner, David Hurwitz, worked on NBC's "Fear Factor," you knew there had to be something gross and slimy involved.

"Yesterday," Klein says, "we did a stunt based on a scene from 'Stand by Me,' where the boys swim through the pond and come out with leeches on them. We put a tank out in the woods, at Santa Anita racecourse. We had a big, Plexiglas tank filled with 50,000 leeches."

For host Matt Iseman, a comedian (and licensed general practitioner), it's more about bringing movies to life.

"We are doing a 'Karate Kid' challenge," he says. "It's going to be the crane stance. They're going to be standing on a pole, trying to balance themselves. I'm going to be down there, throwing out every Cobra Kai line I can think of.

"That's me in a candy store. I remember going to see that in the theater six times, bought the VHS when it came out, own the DVD. That movie meant a lot to me. That challenge will mean a lot to me when it comes out."



In one of the stunts for the new reality series "Scream Play," airing Sunday on E! Entertainment Television, contestants are dragged behind horses in a challenge inspired by the movie "Animal House."

Iseman hits on what E! hopes will be the appeal of the show - a blend of movie-fantasy wish fulfillment and that particular joy that comes from watching someone mess up in an entertaining way.

"I get to sit there," Iseman says, "watch all these people do these crazy stunts and challenges, and my job is to have fun and throw out movie quotes, which I would be doing on my couch anyway."

On this night, though, the contestants seem extremely good at crossing that ladder and unhooking those paint cans. And even if one or more eventually take the plunge, they won't fall far.

"We're here to have fun," Klein says. "The last thing I want is somebody hurt on this. I want to see a good fall, but I don't want to see anybody get hurt."

Milch swears 'Deadwood' profanity is real

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q: I've enjoyed "Deadwood" on HBO, but I wonder about the "period authenticity" of some of the curse words. Were they really part of the lexicon during the late 1800s? -Dennis Koppo, Elmhurst, Ill.

A: "Deadwood" creator David Milch, a former Yale professor who spent a year researching the period, insists that the profanity used in his hit series - including that 10-letter compound "c-word" that seems to be Al Swearengen's (Ian McShane) favorite - was indeed being used in the late 1800s when "Deadwood" is set.

Milch also cites period accounts from journalists and essayists who visited that part of the frontier and returned to report that many of the rough-hewn settlers used profanity that could curl your hair.

For the record, some historians warily acknowledge that the salty words may have been in at least limited use at the time "Deadwood" takes place, but they suggest Milch deliberately overuses them for dramatic effect.

Ian McShane

Q: Is Anthony LaPaglia of "Without a Trace" related to Jonathan LaPaglia of "The District"? -Shirley Benedetto, Daytona Beach, Fla.

A: With apologies to the readers who saw this answer on one of its earlier appearances, and as a courtesy to the many others who did not:

Yes, Anthony LaPaglia is the oldest of three brothers. Jonathan is the youngest. Michael LaPaglia, the middle brother, is not in show business.

Q: Whatever happened to the actor who played Col. Flagg on "M*A*S*H"? -Doris in Green Bay, Wis.

A: Edward Winter, who had the recurring role of gung-ho Col. Samuel Flagg from 1974-79, continued his successful career, which had started on Broadway with Tony-nominated appearances in the musicals "Cabaret" and "Promises, Promises."

After leaving "M*A*S*H," Winter co-starred in the TV series "Empire," "9 to 5," and "The Family Man," as well as the TV movies "The Scarlett O'Hara War," "Wait Until Dark," "The Christmas Gift" and "The American Clock," along with many guest appearances.

Sadly, Winter died of Parkinson's disease in 2001. He was only 63.

WB gives big vote of confidence to 'Steve Harvey's Big Time'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Steve Harvey insists he didn't freak out last fall when he learned his new WB Network series, "Steve Harvey's Big Time," had been scheduled for Thursdays opposite two of TV's biggest hits.

"You know, 8 p.m. on Thursday is a helluva time slot, unless you're 'Friends' or 'Survivor,' " Harvey concedes, "but like I said in (our first press conferences), if you're able just to survive in that kind of setting, you get something as a reward."

He got that "something" in May, when WB executives announced that "Big Time" had been renewed for the 2004-05 season, moved to a more congenial Sunday time period and expanded to an hour.

"I'm really excited about it, man," Harvey says. "My stuff is always kind of just under the radar screen anyway. A lot of people don't really know what to make of what it is that I do. I've managed to stay on TV and keep my career going, and it's interesting to see what new things are happening in the reality shows."

He catches himself almost immediately, reflecting on how the current TV schedule is peppered with variations on antique formats such as game shows.

"I mean, maybe 'new' isn't the best word, because as Bill Cosby said to me one time, there's really nothing new you can do on TV," he adds quickly. "But they're taking new chances and trying new things with old forms. Like Drew Carey has a sketch comedy show, but he's adding animation to it.

"Everybody thinks (in terms of) 'The Ed Sullivan Show,' and that's kind of what we're doing with 'Steve Harvey's Big Time.' "

If Harvey has heard the conventional wisdom that TV variety shows are dead, he clearly puts no stock in those gloomy reports - and WB executives think he may just be the very person to pump new life into "the V-word."

"Steve always has wanted to do 'The Ed Sullivan Show,' and he actually is exactly the right kind of host for that," says Keith Cox, senior vice president of alternative programming at The WB Network.

"So much of the success of a (variety show) hinges on who is hosting it. On Steve's radio show, he talks to everyday people but he also has performers and celebrity friends come on the show. We want that same kind of blend on TV."

Even in last season's killer time period, 'Big Time' occasionally managed to pull some respectable ratings with its quirky, family-friendly format that found Harvey introducing everyday Americans who either had some jaw-dropping ability (such as the 4-year-old current events expert) or a propensity for the truly nutty, like the 32-year-old builder from Louisville, Ky., who smashed brick walls by running into them at a full sprint.

"The guy running into the brick wall just put me out," Harvey says of the latter act. "I mean, that bit just went somewhere else. That was just it for me, and I love that one the most, no question."

Originally envisioned by its creators as an hour-long program, 'Big Time' was cut to half an hour by nervous WB programmers who weren't sure whether the free-wheeling format could sustain a full hour.

In hindsight, that was a mistake, Cox acknowledges, and he knows how he wants to fill the extra time next fall: more Steve.

"If the show lacked anything last season, it was that it was only half an hour, so Steve's personality and his point of view got muted," Cox explains. "It wasn't coming across as strongly in that half-hour format, because we had so many acts and performances we had to get on during that half hour. Now that we're expanding the show to an hour, Steve will have a much better chance to let his personality shine through.

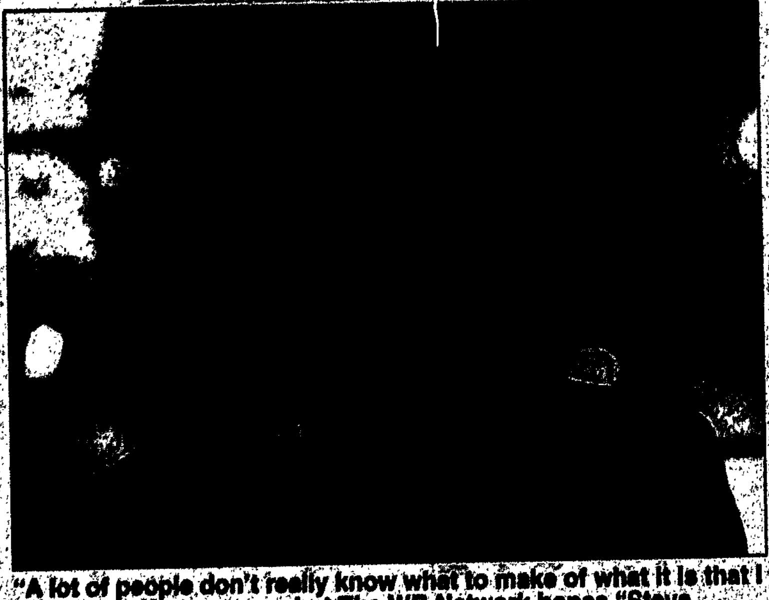
"We knew there was something there, but the main thing certainly was that we were aware that we had a star and we didn't want that star to go away."

"That star" is delighted to be entrusted with another half hour of prime-time WB real estate, and he already has an idea of the new elements he plans to add to his "people next door" segments.

"I'll probably come out and do a three- to five-minute monologue, something I believe I might be qualified to do that," he says drily. "We'll have other comedians on as well, from time to time, and every week the hottest pop act for that week, like Britney Spears or Beyonce (Knowles) or something like that.

"We're also gonna have some more of what we're doing, these crazy things, plus some celebrity guests. We did that with Stevie Wonder and it was a big success, so I thought, well, why not have some more of my friends come hang out with me?"

Of course, the cherry on this sundae is the fact that "Big Time" has moved to a night that Sullivan owned on CBS for many years. That's not too shabby a model to use for his own series, Harvey knows.



"A lot of people don't really know what to make of what it is that I do," Steve Harvey says, but The WB Network hopes "Steve Harvey's Big Time" may help revive the moribund variety genre.

"We make a conscious effort to make 'Steve Harvey's Big Time' good family entertainment," he says firmly. "I like watching TV with my kids, and I got them from 21 all the way down to 6. It's hard to find something that won't bore me or be over the heads of my young kids. My job is to make people laugh, and that's what our show does, and will continue to do, with great entertainment, no (profanity), a place this fall where a family can gather on Sunday nights and get ready for Monday by spending this good time together.

"In some reality TV, a man picks one woman over another, so you see the real pain of the woman who wasn't selected, who maybe had fallen in love during the course of the show and now didn't get him. I don't want to see that, certainly not all the time, and I don't want to see a guy eating a bug every week.

"Are you stupid enough to let yourself be covered with a thousand scorpions? Fine, but don't expect me to care. We're not putting people on to shock them or the viewers at home; we're there partly to give a chance to people who deserve to have a shot at 'the big time.' "

"My father taught me how to play poker and read the Racing Form at age 9," "World Poker Tour" host Vince Van Patten says. "He thought it would come in handy in case all else failed. Well, I guess all else failed, and I've been playing ever since. It's a passion of mine".

This passion has turned Vince, at one time a world-class tennis player, into a world-class poker player. He has a 20-year history of star-studded home poker games of his own, and has commentated on major poker events. So it was a natural fit that he lend his hosting skills to "WPT," which airs its second season championship game Wednesday, June 30, on Travel Channel.

According to Van Patten, this championship "will undoubtedly be the largest prize pool in the history of poker. We estimate it between $7 million to $10 million. There should be 400 players in total."

Among those 400 are the 12 winners of the previous second-season games, including Erick Lindgren and Phil Laak. "They call (Phil) the Unabomber because he always wears this hooded sweatshirt," Van Patten laughs, "and he makes a bet, and then he covers his entire face - everything but his two eyeballs - with the hood. He's hysterical." There will also be the celebrity winners of the Hollywood Home Game editions of "World Poker Tour": Mimi Rogers, Ming-Na ("ER") and Richard Karn ("Family Feud").

"A lot of them are getting their feet wet with poker," Van Patten says of the celebrities. "But then there are a few, like Ben Affleck, James Woods, Lou Diamond Phillips and Mimi Rogers, who are quite exceptional. I would consider Ben, at this point, the best celebrity poker player. He also plays in my side game in L.A. He loves the game; it's his new passion. He says he's only doing movies now to support his poker game. He has the potential to be totally world-class. He'll be playing in the (championship) as well. If you're a good actor, there's a little advantage there."

But for Affleck and others who did not win during the season to grab a spot in this tournament, it'll cost 'em - the celebs and major superstars of the poker world need to ante up $25,000 to enter the championship. That likely won't dent their pocketbooks too much, and the potential payoff more than offsets that entry fee. Not to mention the rush that Van Patten believes cannot be found in other card games.

"I believe poker has a true edge on other games," Van Patten says, "and when you get to see the cards, and see the players in poker, it's even more unique. I think (Texas Hold 'Em) is the best TV form of poker without a doubt. The five community cards make it real simple and real TV-friendly."

"It's the element of the bluff that separates a poker game from other games," Van Patten sums up. "The fact that you can have the worst hand, and yet you will win the money if you have the guts and the right timing to pull off a bluff, that's what makes it truly exciting. Plus, the fact that we play no limit - you can bet everything you want at any time. Other games - blackjack, craps - you can't make these outstanding bets where it's all on the line. I'm just impressed on how many great players have the guts to make absolute stone-cold bluffs. I'm just awed by how many are making those kind of plays in critical situations. You're watching real-life cowboys."

Players get ready for a high-stakes game of poker in "World Poker Tour," airing Wednesday on Travel Channel. Some of the card sharks with the cash ante up $25,000 just to get the chance to hold 'em and fold 'em with other championship players.

Kruk finds a home on ESPN's 'Baseball Tonight'

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Ask John Kruk of ESPN's nightly "Baseball Tonight" who the most colorful character was on a colorful 1993 Philadelphia Phillies team, and he doesn't hesitate with his answer.

"Lenny," he says of teammate Lenny Dykstra, the center fielder and leadoff hitter for the National League champions that year. "Lenny was just very, very eccentric. He was very superstitious. Like he had to have his sleeves cut the same length. If we went on a road trip, he had to get new sleeves and cut them off, like one at one length, another at another length. He had three different sets of sleeves, and they all had to be cut at different lengths. A pair of batting gloves for each at-bat. And if he went 0-for-2, he would go up and take his whole uniform off, the whole thing, strip down naked and start from scratch, and put on whole, new outfits: sliding pants, jock, stirrups - the whole thing."

After 10 years as one of the better left-handed hitters of his day, compiling a .300 lifetime average, making three All-Star appearances and nearly winning a World Series with the Phillies, Kruk retired from baseball during the 1995 season. Like many professional athletes, he didn't know what he wanted to do with the rest of his life.

Then inspiration struck. "Actually, I was talking to my wife," he says, "and I wasn't doing anything. I was thinking about taking a job with the Phillies in the minor leagues as a coach. And she said, 'What would you like to do? You can't just sit around and do nothing.' And I said that I'd love to do a sports show where you can say anything you want, wear jeans and a T-shirt (and) drink a beer. And it was amazing: About two months later, I got this call, and they said, 'Hey, there's a show in California. Here's the gist of the show. Would you like to go out and audition? I'll call them.' And I didn't know this guy. I didn't know who he was. I don't know how he got my phone number. So I said, 'What the heck - I'll do it.' So I went out and auditioned and got the job for 'The Best Damn Sports Show.'

When he was hired in 2001 to co-host after auditioning with Tom Arnold, Chris Rose, Reggie Theus and Deacon Jones, he had one condition. "They asked me, because I think I was the first one hired, 'Who would you like to work with?' And I said, 'Anyone but Tom Arnold.' I just watched him on TV and I thought, 'This guy's just a jackass. Why would anyone want to work with him?' And we actually became very good friends, and we still talk a lot on the phone to this day, which is amazing. You know, people say that first impressions are the right impressions, well, I was wrong with that one, believe me."

Kruk enjoyed his time on the show, but Los Angeles was a six-hour plane flight from his family in New Jersey, and a little one was on the way. A job closer to home was what he had in mind. "It just got hard," Kruk says. "I wanted to be with them, and so the Phillies offered me a broadcasting job to do home games, and I loved it. I loved it. It was a lot of fun announcing. But I was only doing home games, and then they asked me during this last summer if I would be interested in doing full time, going on the road, and I said, 'Yes, I would love to.' I talked to my wife, and she figured for six months, I'm home for two weeks and gone for two weeks - that's not a problem. So we both agreed we can do that."

He did, for the 2003 season. Then another fortuitous phone call came his way. "The agent who called me for 'The Best Damn Sports Show,' who I eventually hired, called me and he said, 'ESPN hasn't found anyone to fill Bobby Valentine's spot on "Baseball Tonight." ' ... And I said, 'Stop right there. I have no interest; I don't want to do it. I'm happy being at home every day.'

"So I hang up the phone. I'm like, 'Oh my God!' My wife said, 'All right, what's going on?' I told her about 'Baseball Tonight,' that it's a studio show, but it's in Connecticut. And she said, 'Is it just during the baseball season?' And I said, 'Yeah.' She said, 'Well, why don't you talk to them?'

"So I went up there. They asked me some questions, and within a day or two, they basically said, 'You have the job if you want it.' And I'm like, 'Oh God!' And I'm only up here - you know, I leave Sunday from home, and I get home Thursday morning."

Best of all, he can commute by car. "It takes me three hours," Kruk says.

"MLB Baseball" Sunday, June 27 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): This interborough matchup may never exceed the hype it generated when it was first played in 1997, partly because it's occurred six times each year since then. But even though some of the novelty's worn off, Mets-Yankees is still a spectacle, especially with the added bonus this year of the Mets playing well. Mike Piazza and his mates invade Yankee Stadium tonight to close a three-game set against Alex Rodriguez and the Bronx Bombers.

"Tennis" Saturday, July 3 (NBC, 9 a.m. ET): Let's face it, what NBC - and probably most tennis fans - is hoping for is another sister act in today's women's singles final of the Wimbledon championships. Tennis ratings are down overall, but when Serena and Venus Williams get together, as they have the past two years in the final, more people watch. Case in point: the recent French Open final between Anastasia Myskina and Elena Dementieva garnered a 23 percent lower overnight viewership than in 2003.

"NASCAR Racing" Saturday, July 3 (Fox, 7 p.m. ET): Turn on the lights! The party's just starting in Daytona Beach, Fla., for the Nextel Cup's third night race of the season, the Pepsi 400 from historic Daytona International Speedway. Restrictor-plate races have been dominated in recent years by Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip, but Greg Biffle took a turn in the super-speedway spotlight with his surprise win here last year. Biffle also ran well in February's Daytona 500, finishing 12th.

Linda Dano: accessory fashionista

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

Soap icon Linda Dano, who recently headed into the sunset with her television honey in "One Life to Live," celebrates her 11th anniversary with QVC Tuesday, June 29. The "Best of" show features the designer's favorite accessories with advice on how to use them to advantage.

Dano, whose style savvy came to the forefront during her years as Felicia Gallant in "Another World," believes that if called upon to do so, she could take an inexpensive black dress and change it every single day so no one would ever know it was the same frock.

It was a match made in heaven when QVC asked her to design for them. After all, she already had a company called Strictly Personal, and was dressing people and designing accessories for them.

"How many clothes can you buy?" Dano asks. "It is stupid to keep buying the same things over and over and over again when, in fact, you just need basics, and you can have fun changing them with accessories."

Eleven years into the venture, Dano believes the QVC shopper has become more sophisticated, and understands that by using her baubles, bangles and beads, a customer creates an individual style. That's why Dano's focus is on creating items she can't find in the marketplace.

"I live by what I preach," says the actress, who claims to have a relatively small closet. "I have basic clothing: the appropriate skirts, pants, jackets and sweaters in basic colors. Then I add color and pizzazz with belts, jewelry, scarves and all that good stuff."

Dear Paulette: Is the actress who plays Theresa Lopez-Fitzgerald on "Passions" pregnant in real life? On recent episodes, she definitely looks very pregnant. Also, is she married? Thank you. -Barbara, Fort Smith, Ariz.

Dear Reader: Lindsay Korman (Theresa) is expecting her first baby in July. She and co-star Justin Hartley (Nicholas Foxworth Crane) were married on May 1, and she will begin using his name. While it is not yet confirmed, "Passions" temporarily may recast the role during her maternity leave.

6:30 p.m. on TBS

MLB Baseball

Dismissing the sad-sack Montreal Expos, the National League East is a four-team race as July approaches, and two of those clubs, Atlanta and Florida, begin a four-game series tonight. The Braves' pitching, ranked in the Major's top five in ERA, has kept them in contention, and the hitting of catcher Johnny Estrada has helped a sometimes stagnant offense. Similarly, Mike Lowell and Miguel Cabrera are the big guns in the Marlins' lineup.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

North Shore

Nicole (Brooke Burns) is treated to an unexpected birthday bash by friends who arrive from Manhattan in the new episode "Surprise Party." One of them targets Jason (Kristoffer Polaha) romantically. MJ and Gabriel (Nikki DeLoach, Corey Sevier) also are impacted by the visitors. Tessa (Amanda Righetti) isn't sure how to handle a guest's request, which involves Vincent (James Remar).

7 p.m. on 38-WB

7th Heaven

Lucy and Kevin (Beverley Mitchell, George Stults) learn that Chandler (Jeremy London) has his eye on the house they want in "There's No Place Like It." Eric and Annie (Stephen Collins, Catherine Hicks) decide to pay off their own home. Ruthie (Mackenzie Rosman) fears Martin (Tyler Hoechlin) will get the space she wants to move into. Peter (Scotty Leavenworth) thinks his father (guest star Bryan Callen) is having an affair.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

The Parkers

Following her maternity leave, Countess Vaughn James returned to the show in "Mama, I'm Baaack!" Her character, Harvard student Kim, comes home — to the alarm of Nikki (Mo'Nique), who has rented out Kim's room. The result is a scheme to get the current tenant, the dreaded Erica (guest star Porscha Coleman), to leave. Professor Oglevee (Dorien Wilson) is drawn into a scam.

7:30 p.m. on 54-UPN

Eve

J.T. (Jason George) wishes Shelly (Eve) had kept one of his bedroom activities to herself, rather than letting her girlfriends in on it, in "Private Dancer." She's equally unhappy with him when he tells Nick (Brian Hooks) of an intimate encounter that transpired at a football stadium. Grammy-winning hip-hop artist Missy Elliott guest stars.

8:30 p.m. on 4-CBS

Two and a Half Men

Charlie and Alan's (Charlie Sheen, Jon Cryer) competition for the affections of the same woman (guest star Jenna Elfman, "Dharma & Greg") ends when she chooses one of the brothers in "That Was Saliva, Alan," the conclusion of a two-part episode. Smooth sailing isn't in the cards, though, since she reveals why she and her young daughter (guest star Juliette Goglia) have stayed on the move.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: Miami

"Blood Brothers" is set during Fashion Week in Miami. A model's hit-and-run death leads Horatio (David Caruso) and his team to a playboy (guest star Gonzalo Menendez) who attended the same party as the victim, but he and his brother (guest star Yancey Arias, "Kingpin") are immune from prosecution. Chad Lowe and supermodel Heidi Klum also guest star.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

8 Simple Rules

Jonathan Taylor Thomas ("Home Improvement") guest stars as Bridget's (Kaley Cuoco) new tutor, who may become more to her, in Part 1 of the three-part episode "Opposites Attract." As Valentine's Day approaches, he could find himself sharing the romantic occasion with her. Cate and Jim (Katey Sagal, James Garner) advise Rory (Martin Spanjers) on an appropriate gift to give his girlfriend.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Gilmore Girls

Luke (Scott Patterson) has mixed feelings about a surprise visit from his sister (guest star Kathleen Wilhoite) in "A Family Matter." Lorelai (Lauren Graham) backs down from the promise she made Jason (guest star Chris Eigeman) to reveal their romance to her parents. Rory (Alexis Bledel) inspires Paris (Liza Weil) to make some relationship-related decisions.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Nova

"Fireworks!" examines what goes into the dazzling displays of color in the sky. The creation of fireworks takes definite skill and extreme caution, as confirmed almost yearly by news stories about people injured through their unfamiliarity with handling them.

7:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Bernie Mac Show

It's all in the family for Bernie (Bernie Mac) as he orchestrates a gathering of many of his relatives in "Family Reunion." His excitement over the event dims as true colors are revealed by various visitors, including an older brother (guest star Glynn Turman) who questions Bernie's parenting skills, and an aunt (guest star Anna Maria Horsford) who wants Bernie to do a cooking show with her.

I'm With Her

Patrick (David Sutcliffe) prepares for his high-school reunion, without inviting Alex (Teri Polo) to accompany him to the event. She soon thinks she knows why, after hearing a phone message from his school flame (guest star Kimberly Quinn) — prompting Alex to attend the gathering, too.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Jury

Many cast members from the prison series "Oz," also made by this show's producers, are featured in the new episode "Last Rites." Jury members — played by such "Oz" veterans as Eamonn Walker, Scott Winters and Betty Buckley — must determine the fate of an inmate accused of murdering a chaplain with premeditation during a prison riot. Megan (Anna Friel) represents the defendant by challenging the credibility of the lone witness.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Summerland

Erika (Taylor Cole) may help Jay (Ryan Kwanten) get into a surfing contest, despite the knee injury that threatens to keep him out. Ava (Lori Loughlin) wants to do an extreme makeover on her house, but Johnny and Susannah (Shawn Christian, Merrin Dungey) only complicate the situation when she seeks their help.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Flashpoints U.S.A. With Bryant Gumbel and Gwen Ifill

Since this public-affairs program airs only periodically, it has the luxury of being able to take a broader overview of issues that can shift daily. The new episode "America at War" is a prime example, since it examines the war in Iraq just as sovereignty is scheduled to be given to that country's new government. Hosts Gumbel and Ifill talk with guests about the role the United States may continue to play in the Iraqis' rebuilding process.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

NYPD 24/7

In "Hour Two," veteran New York police lieutenant Vic Hollifield leads members of the city's Emergency Service Unit in stopping a man from leaping off a bridge. He also helps free a sanitation worker from a damaged truck, and rescue a child whose parents are engaged in a custody battle. A female undercover detective uses her wiles to get the goods on privileged people in illegal solicitations.

What I Like About You

The startup cost of Val's (Jennie Garth) business forces her and Holly (Amanda Bynes) to find other living arrangements in "The Loft." Tina's (Allison Munn) neighbor has an apartment that would be ideal for the siblings, and Holly has to visit him in his current residence — prison — to seal the deal.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Movie: Gossip

Inspired by a journalism professor (Eric Bogosian), three college students (James Marsden, Lena Headey, Norman Reedus) test the power of gossip in this 2000 drama. They start a rumor that two schoolmates have had sex, though the woman involved (Kate Hudson) was drunk and passed out. Nothing happened, but when she hears the talk, she thinks she might have been raped while unconscious. Her boyfriend (Joshua Jackson) is arrested.

7 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: Primary Colors

John Travolta stars as Gov. Jack Stanton, a Southerner who decides he wants to run for president. In order to do that, he has to have some kind of a campaign plan. With all the rumors about his personal life floating around, it won't be easy to get people to take Jack seriously. Emma Thompson, Billy Bob Thornton, Kathy Bates and Diane Ladd co-star in this 1998 comedy-drama.

7 p.m. on HALL

Movie: Johnson County War

Pulitzer Prize-winning author Larry McMurtry ("Lonesome Dove") co-wrote the teleplay for this four-hour 2002 Western. A corrupt marshal (Burt Reynolds) helps the enemies, who also target a prostitute (Rachel Ward).

7 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Crossfire Trail

Tom Selleck stars in this 2001 adaptation of a novel by his late, great friend Louis L'Amour. The actor plays a man who promises to look after a friend's widow (Virginia Madsen), a task that involves keeping her and her Wyoming ranch away from the town bully (Mark Harmon). Complicating things is his growing attraction to the lady, giving him his share of moral qualms despite the fact that she's free. David O'Hara and Wilford Brimley also star.

7 p.m. on TMC

Movie: How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days

A Doris Day-type romantic comedy, this light but entertaining 2003 movie casts Kate Hudson as a magazine reporter doing a story on luring — then getting dumped by — a beau in 10 days. She attracts an advertising executive (Matthew McConaughey) who has just bet he can woo a woman into falling in love with him within the same time frame. Bebe Neuwirth, Robert Klein and Kathryn Hahn ("Crossing Jordan") co-star.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Hope & Faith

Having a sister as determined as Faith (Kelly Ripa) can be a good thing, but not necessarily when it comes to the fine art of campaigning, as Hope (Faith Ford) learns the hard way in "Madam President." In running to become the new chief of the neighborhood association, Hope gets backing from Faith that isn't completely above board. Mimi Rogers ("Lost in Space") guest stars.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

JAG

Harm (David James Elliott) draws a night mission to Libya to retrieve an endangered CIA agent in "Touchdown." The operative wants to take his whole family with him, complicating the assignment. ### 8 p.m. on 38-WB

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: The Legend of Bagger Vance

Robert Redford returned to directing with this rather mystical 2000 tale, which casts Matt Damon as a former soldier-turned-golfer. His game is off, not only on the links but also in life, and he gets advice on how to proceed from an enigmatic caddy (Will Smith). Charlize Theron and Jack Lemmon also star in the drama, which was adapted from a book by Steven Pressfield.

7 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: The Patriot

Colonial farmer, father of seven, and French and Indian War veteran Benjamin Martin (Mel Gibson) has no interest in the fight for independence from the British. He certainly doesn't want his oldest son (Heath Ledger) to join the rebellion, but he can't stop him. When a British colonel captures the youth and kills his brother, Dad becomes the redcoats' worst nightmare. Chris Cooper and Joely Richardson also star in the 2000 drama.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: The General's Daughter

Military cop Paul Brenner (John Travolta) investigates the sadistic murder of a promising young captain (Leslie Stefanson) and discovers she had a kinky side. Aided by a fellow warrant officer (Madeleine Stowe) with whom he once had a romance, Brenner uncovers a sordid mess involving nearly every senior officer on the base. The 1999 mystery also stars James Cromwell as the victim's father and James Woods as her boss.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: The Medallion

Jackie Chan gets otherworldly help for his martial-arts prowess again in this easy-to-take 2003 comedy-adventure. He plays a Hong Kong sleuth transformed into an immortal by the title medallion, making him the target of a villain (Julian Sands) who wants the magical amulet for himself. Claire Forlani ("Meet Joe Black") and Lee Evans ("Mouse Hunt") co-star as Chan's partners against crime; John Rhys-Davies also appears.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Crime & Punishment

A Navy officer, accused of killing his wife for her alleged infidelity while he was away on duty, is the defendant in the new episode "People v. Terry Hall." He admits to the crime; then it's up to the attorneys whether to proceed on a charge of manslaughter or first-degree murder.

9 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: The Professional

Luc Besson, the French filmmaker who scored with "La Femme Nikita," again concentrates on covert criminal activities with this effective 1994 hybrid of genres. Jean Reno ("Mission: Impossible") stars as a killer who alters his modus operandi when a young neighbor (Natalie Portman) becomes his companion following her parents' deaths. Gary Oldman co-stars as a corrupt cop.

(Ratings for each film begin with a star rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"COLD MOUNTAIN": Renee Zellweger's Oscar-winning performance is a highlight of director Anthony Minghella's richly atmospheric Civil War drama, based on the novel by Charles Frazier. Jude Law also was nominated for an Academy Award as a Confederate soldier who becomes a deserter to return to his true love (Nicole Kidman) - despite the fact that self-styled vigilantes lay in wait for those who have gone AWOL. Zellweger plays a mountain woman who teaches Kidman's character to be self-sufficient; co-stars include Donald Sutherland, Natalie Portman, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Brendan Gleeson, and Kathy Baker. DVD extras: audio commentary by Minghella and editor Walter Murch; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes.  (R: AS, P, V)

"BARBERSHOP 2: BACK IN BUSINESS": The boisterous spirit that made the original comedy a "sleeper" hit remains in evidence in this entertaining sequel. Now firmly in charge of the Chicago hair-cutting shop he inherited, Calvin (Ice Cube) is concerned about a new business rival (Harry Lennix) as well as an underhanded politician (Robert Wisdom). Queen Latifah plays the operator of a neighboring beauty shop, the subject of a spinoff comedy movie yet to come. Troy Garity, Cedric the Entertainer, Sean Patrick Thomas and Eve also star. DVD extras: audio commentary by cast and crew members; deleted scenes; outtakes; photo gallery; music video.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE PERFECT SCORE": [illegible] school comedy comes from MTV [illegible] the comedy of the [illegible] world co-written by "One Tree Hill" creator Mark Schwahn. Determined not to let the S.A.T. keep him from his goals, a student (Chris Evans) enlists several peers to help him steal the all-important test in advance. Scarlett Johansson ("Lost in Translation"), Erika Christensen ("Traffic") and Bryan Greenberg play some of the co-conspirators. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by director Brian Robbins and Schwahn; "making-of" documentary.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"DIE MOMMIE DIE!": A knowing parody of the 1950s and '60s Hollywood tearjerkers commonly called "women's pictures" in their day, this clever satire finds Charles Busch - also the film's writer - camping it up as a woman who takes drastic measures to end her loveless marriage to a producer (Philip Baker Hall). She feels free to intensify her connection to a younger lover (Jason Priestley), but others in the household may thwart her plans. Natasha Lyonne and Frances Conroy ("Six Feet Under") also are in on the dark fun. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Busch, Priestley and director Mark Rucker; introduction by Rucker; "Anatomy of a Scene" documentary; featurette on the film's costumes; photo gallery; music video.  (R: AS, P, V)

"CSI: MIAMI - THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" begat a second successful series for CBS with this drama, which follows the cases of forensic investigators in Florida. David Caruso plays Horatio Caine, the intense leader of a team that also includes Emily Procter, Rory Cochrane, Khandi Alexander and Adam Rodriguez. The earliest episodes also pair Caruso with another "NYPD Blue" veteran, Kim Delaney, who left the show before its maiden season was even halfway through. DVD extras: audio commentary by producers, writers and crew members on selected episodes; "making-of" documentaries.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"WONDER WOMAN: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": Saluted for the role at the most recent TV Land Awards, appropriately statuesque Lynda Carter plays the superheroine in this adaptation of the long-popular DC Comics series. Though later seasons of the show would have a contemporary sheen, this initial set of stories is set during World War II as Diana Prince activates her magic bracelets and lasso as Wonder Woman, often to rescue Major Steve Trevor (Lyle Waggoner). DVD extras: audio commentary by Carter and executive producer Douglas S. Cramer on pilot episode; retrospective documentary.  (Not rated: V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"THE BUTTERFLY EFFECT" (July 6): Ashton Kutcher plays a young man who gets to travel through time and alter events, but he doesn't realize the ultimate impact. (R: AS, P, V)

"AGAINST THE ROPES" (July 13): Meg Ryan stars in the true story of Jackie Kallen, a boxing promoter who bet her career on one fighter (Omar Epps); co-star Charles Dutton directed the film. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

Sharon Gless' real character is one she has rarely portrayed

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Awards attest to Sharon Gless' acting talents. Colleagues rave about her prowess playing brazen dames.

To truly understand what a superb actress she is, however, you have to understand the real Sharon Gless.

By her own admission, Gless, who co-stars in Showtime's Sunday drama "Queer as Folk," is "shy and reluctant. The roles are so brassy. I never played a character who was shy in my life. I love the way people see me and cast me."

On the fourth-year series, Gless plays Debbie, a loving mother of a gay son. She is a diner waitress with a foul mouth, political T-shirts and red hair that looks as if she lost a fight with a blind beautician.

Gless is proud of the look. "A lot of people, including my husband, say, 'I can't believe you are going on television like that,'" she says with a laugh that starts deep in her being.

"The red hair distances her from Sharon," says executive producer Daniel Lipman. "But they have the same heart."

Lipman recalls the bleak days of casting "Queer as Folk," when actors were not auditioning for the show because they did not want to play gays. Gless, however, sought this part, and it has only made her more popular. "I would not have the career I have without the gay community," she says.

Lesbians already had embraced Gless' strong cop Christine Cagney in "Cagney & Lacey," though the character was straight. And the gay community has adopted Debbie, who is also straight but completely supportive of her son. In both shows, Gless wanted to play a complex, outspoken woman.

"I smelled trouble," she says of her reaction to reading the pilot for "Queer as Folk." "And I love trouble. ... I expected more trouble. We were upstaged by the fact that we couldn't elect a president. We were so sure that the religious right would picket us, and I couldn't wait. We just sort of sneaked by."

If the religious right won't picket her, Gless decided to picket it. On April 25, she was part of the March for Women's Lives in Washington, D.C. "It was the first time I ever actually marched and it was the most extraordinary experience to be with one million women and the men who love them," Gless says.

She went with her husband, Barney Rosenzweig, and one of her closest friends, Tyne Daly, her partner in fighting crime in "Cagney & Lacey."

Daly recalls they met at the bar of a Hollywood party for "Roots" years before they were teamed, and they struck up a conversation praising each other's talents. "I said something to her that night and she was so impressed with it," Daly says. "I said, 'What is it?' She can't remember. I am still hanging around to find out what brilliant thing I said to her when we first met."

"She made me laugh," Daly says. One reason is that Gless laughs easily at herself and at life's absurdities.

Though a fifth-generation Angeleno born 61 years ago into a family with strong ties to show business, Gless got a relatively late start at 26. She knew when she was 6 that she wanted to act when she saw her classmate, Billy Chapin, on screen. She asked her mother to approach an uncle, a casting director, who "unfortunately did not believe in nepotism," she says.

She recalls her mother saying, "We both decided it was important that you finish school first and then we'll talk about it again." Ever-obedient, Gless waited until she was 18 to broach the topic. Gless then told her grandfather, Neil McCarthy, lawyer to studio bosses Louis B. Mayer and Howard Hughes, she wanted to act. "He said, 'It's a filthy business. You stay out of it,'" Gless says. "I didn't have the nerve to be impudent."

Instead, she attended a Jesuit college from which she was expelled for twice sneaking in beer. "And I don't even like beer," she says gleefully.

Her mother, realizing Gless was emotionally suffocating at home, spirited her to the bus terminal. She gave her daughter $200, and told her to stay at a YWCA after arriving at wherever she wanted to go.

Gless got off the bus in Spokane, Wash., to be near buddies. "I answered an ad at a warehouse in a shady part of town," she says. "I was wearing a pink linen suit, white gloves, a blond ponytail and heels."

They gave her the job - selling aluminum siding door-to-door. A man in a station wagon drove her around, and she ended up apologizing to people for disturbing them. She sold nothing. "I walk up to another house and ring the bell," she says, barely suppressing the guffaw coming, "and the man in the station wagon starts honking." When she returned to the car, he explained, "That's a brick house."

"I was afraid to tell them I didn't know what aluminum siding was," she says.

After a day, Gless enrolled in secretarial school and excelled. She worked corporate jobs, then became a production secretary, and sometimes would read with auditioning actresses. Gless discovered she enjoyed acting, and because she was in charge of the payroll, she also realized how much more actresses earned.

When the production company folded, Gless was left broke and stranded in Arizona. She visited her grandfather and his new wife, who told Gless she needed to do something with her life. After they shared a bottle of champagne, Gless confessed her ambition to act. She was afraid of her grandfather's reaction, but he encouraged her, and gave her money for acting class.

Sharon Gless wanted the role of the brassy waitress on Showtime's Sunday drama "Queer as Folk" from the moment she read the script. "I've never had so much fun playing a character," she says.
